Of his own role

Dean hoped for Nixon details

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III testified today that he had hoped until mid-April that President Nixon would come forward to fully explain his own role in the Watergate affair.

When that did not happen, Dean told Senate Watergate investigators, he began "to explain highlights of some of the things that involved the President" to federal prosecutors.

Dean acknowledged that in his televised testimony he had accused the President of Watergate cover-up involvement that linked him with criminal offenses.

"I'm telling the truth as I know it," he insisted as committee members and lawyers questioned him point by point about his assertions that Nixon was involved in the scandal cover-up.

Dean, in a statement he described as personal opinion, said he believes White House aides probably relayed to Nixon information about the wiretapping and initial cover-up efforts.

Dean was asked by Fred Thompson, Republican counsel for the committee, why he had waited until April 15 to begin telling federal prosecutors his accusations that Nixon participated in covering up the wiretapping affair.

Dean said he expected Nixon "to come forward and explain his involvement in the way I thought he would."

Dean said he had told Nixon about cover-up actions as early as Sept. 15, 1972. He said he finally told Nixon last March 21 that presidential aides H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, and Dean himself could be indicted in the Watergate scandal.

Dean said the President did not seem surprised at that.

When the cover-up persisted, Dean said, he went to federal prosecutors on April 12, and began telling them broadly of presidential involvement on April 15.

Committee members and lawyers devoted much of their questioning to testing Dean's credibility. At one point Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., asked Dean why he thinks people should believe him, rather than the President.

"I have been asked here to come up and tell the truth," Dean said. "I've told it the best way I know."

Dean claimed no first-hand knowledge that the President knew in advance of the Watergate operation, or of the instant cover-up effort.

He testified that Gordon Strachan, aide to Haldeman, knew what was going on at the Committee for the Re-election of the President in connection with Watergate.

"My opinion is that he would report everything he knew in some form to Mr. Haldeman," Dean said.

Dash then asked whether Haldeman would have reported word of the wiretap and cover-up to the President.

"I believe he probably would have reported it," Dean replied.

After accusing Nixon and his top aides of covering up the Watergate wiretapping affair, Dean returned to the witness chair to answer questions about the 245-page statement he read to the Senate panel Monday.

Pressed about his own role in the cover-up of campaign involvement in the wiretapping at Democratic headquarters, the former presidential lawyer said that operation was under way within two days of the burglary on June 17, 1972.

"... It just became an instant way of life," he said.

"... And I participated in it."

He said he acted on instructions from Haldeman, former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman and other officials.

Dean said in retrospect he should have done more to stop the wiretapping plans when they were first proposed in his presence.

In the opening statement, which he read during an extended committee session Monday, Dean droned through his long-awaited account of the way Watergate grew into a massive conspiracy to head off a potentially disastrous scandal.

Dean said when he realized that the cover-up was falling apart early this year, he "began to unfold everything I knew about the case" to Watergate prosecutors he had deceived for months.

Dean said today his motive in unfolding the story to the Watergate committee was not to try to obtain immunity from prosecution for his own Watergate role.

Dash: You're fully aware, Mr. Dean, of the gravity of the charges you have made, under oath, against the highest official of our land, the President of the United States?

Dean: Yes, I am.

Dash: And being so aware, do you still stand on your statement?

Dean: Yes, I do ... I might add this, Mr. Dash. I realize it's almost an impossible task, if it's one man against the other, that I'm up against and it's not a very pleasant situation. I

In testimony

Dean flatly contradicts Nixon

By BROOKS JACKSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — Four key statements by President Nixon have been contradicted flatly by his former counsel, John W. Dean III.

Testifying Monday before the Senate's Watergate investigating committee, Dean swore Nixon knew of the cover-up, knew of payments to defendants and admitted twice that he discussed an offer of clemency. And he said Nixon persisted in the cover-up this spring despite Nixon's statement that he was trying to get all the facts.

Here is a comparison of what Nixon said and what Dean said:

COVER-UP: The President, in a statement issued May 22, said, "I took no part in, nor was I aware of, any ... efforts that may have been made to cover up the Watergate."

Dean testified that he told Nixon Sept. 15, 1972, that he had assisted in keeping the case from reaching the White House. That was the day seven men were indicted, none higher in the Nixon re-election campaign than G. Gordon Liddy, the finance committee's chief lawyer.

Nixon and Dean met in the Oval Office, with presidential chief of staff H.R. Haldeman present, Dean said.

"The President told me I had done a good job and he appreciated how difficult a task it had been and the President was pleased that the case had stopped with Liddy," Dean said.

"I responded that I could not take credit because others had done much more difficult things than I had done. As the President discussed the present status of the situation I told him that all that I had been able to do was to contain the case and assist in keeping it out of the White House. I also told him that I thought that there was a long way to go before this matter would end and that I certainly could make no assurances that the day would not come when this matter would start to unravel."

CLEMENCY: Nixon also said May 22: "At no time did I authorize any offer of executive clemency for the Watergate defendants, nor did I know of any such offer."

Dean said Nixon told him on March 13 and again on April 15 that he had talked to former domestic adviser John D. Ehrlichman and former presidential counselor Charles W. Colson about an offer of clemency that Dean said was made to E. Howard Hunt, one of the men convicted in the case.

Haldeman was at the March 13 meeting in the Oval Office, Dean said. "The President ... referred to the fact that Hunt had been promised executive clemency. He said that he had discussed this matter with Ehrlichman and ... that Colson also discussed it with him later."

On April 15 Dean said he met with Nixon in his office in the Executive Office Building and advised Nixon he had begun to tell his story to federal prosecutors. "He got up out of his chair, went behind his chair to the corner ... and in a barely audible tone said to me, he was probably foolish to have discussed Hunt's clemency with Colson."

House attempts block of new funds for war

By JIM DAVIS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, after joining the Senate to cut off all available funds for U.S. bombing in Cambodia, turned today to amendments that would block any new money for the military activity.

One proposal would prohibit any new spending for the bombing. Another would ban use of new spending for any U.S. war activities in Indochina.

A choice between the two was offered in a continuing resolution before the House that would give the Pentagon and other federal agencies stop-gap authority to continue spending until Congress passes their regular appropriations bills.

The amendments were defeated in the House Appropriations Committee, but bombing opponents announced they would carry the effort to the House floor today.

The House shouted voice approval Monday of Senate-passed prohibition against using any available funds for "combat activities in, over or from off the shores of Cambodia, or in or over Laos by U.S. forces."

President Nixon has 10 days after he receives the $3.4-billion supplemental money bill containing the cutoff to either halt the bombing or veto the bill. If he does not act within that time the bill becomes law.

The measure is expected to go to the President before the end of the week.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield vowed that if Nixon vetoes the bill he will not get the $3.4 billion, because the Senate will not reapprove the money.

But House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford said he will urge President Nixon to veto the bill. Ford said he still is looking for some way to give the President more time for bombing as part of Nixon's efforts to force a Cambodia cease-fire.

Ford said that secret negotiations were under way to seat a stable government in Cambodia, adding this would bring about the cease-fire.

By court rulings

Parochial officials dismayed

By KRISTIN LILJEHOLM
Associated Press Writer
Parochial school officials across the country say they're disappointed by the Supreme Court's rulings against state tax and tuition breaks for parents of their pupils.

But many indicate they will continue to try other avenues, including a pending federal tax-credit plan.

Civil rights groups praised the decisions, which they said were "more or less expected."

In decisions Monday, the high court said New York and Pennsylvania tuition reimbursement plans and a New York tax deduction program for their non-public schools effectively furthered religion.

Thus, the plans violated First Amendment provisions on separation of church and state, the high court ruled.

Other New York programs to subsidize urban parochial schools in such health and safety expenditures as heat, lights and custodial services and state-required record-keeping also were struck down.

Terence Cardinal Cooke, in a statement through his New York headquarters, called the actions "a step to deny freedom of choice in education to all but the affluent." He said the rulings were "a terrible blow."

(For additional stories on parochial school aid ruling, see page 2a)

In Ohio, where a similar state-aid law was invalidated earlier, Gov. John J. Gilligan called the decisions a hardship

"not only for private schools, their students and families but for the whole public education system as well."

Joan Tuttle of the Massachusetts Civil Liberties Union hailed "the court's continuing determination to maintain the wall between church and state." And Leo Pfeffer, a New York City attorney who helped lead the fight against the state's plans, said he hoped the campaign now was finished.

But Robert Eggold, superintendent of Lutheran schools in Kansas, said he and others would keep pushing for a Nixon-supported federal tax-credit bill for parents of nonpublic school youngsters.

"We're of the opinion that, when Congress passes this and the President signs it, the judicial branch will say, 'This is the law of the land,' and will let it stand," he said.

The bill, which was reported favorably by the House Ways and Means Committee last year but has not been acted upon, again is before that committee as part of an over-all tax reform bill.

No one was predicting the closing of any parochial schools because of the decisions. But Walter Toner, director of Washington State Independent Schools, said it could mean that in time.

"Schools are in trouble, but no deeper than before," said Sister Maura McDonald of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Santa Fe, N.M. Msgr. William Novicky, parochial education superintendent in Cleveland, said he will recommend that tuition be done away with.

Brezhnev starts talks with French president

PARIS (AP) — Leonid I. Brezhnev had a three-hour talk today with President Georges Pompidou of France to start follow-up consultations after his summit meeting in Washington.

A spokesman for Pompidou described the talk as "positive and very complete."

He said Brezhnev underlined the role the Soviet Union considers that France plays in Western Europe and stressed that neither France nor any other country came up for discussion in his talks with Nixon.

This was regarded as Brezhnev's way of assuring Pompidou that the United States and the Soviet Union had not assumed for themselves all the world's decisions.

At opening of the two-day talks Brezhnev was reported ready to offer Pompidou the chairmanship of a "super-East-West summit" conference in Paris in December. French reports said the offer had the approval of President Nixon.

The French see the proposal as a scheme for trying to draw them from their independent stance on nuclear and conventional arms reductions.

A government spokesman indicated that France would not be able to consider it until after the end of the second phase of the European security conference beginning next month in Helsinki, Finland.

The super-summit was described here as a meeting meant to put a definitive end to the Cold War period and was equated to the Congress of Vienna, which closed out the Napoleonic era.

Even before Brezhnev flew in from Washington at midnight Monday, official French sources stated that, whatever the Soviet leader had decided with President Nixon on atomic and weapons controls, "France intends to maintain her sovereignty in matters of national defense."

A French official said privately that the Brezhnev-Pompidou talks in a Marie Antoinette boudoir at the Rambouillet Chateau could be the most difficult between France and Russia since Charles de Gaulle began friendship overtures toward the Soviets in 1964.

It was widely expected that the Soviet Communist party chief would attempt to assure Pompidou, and through him

Western Europe's other leaders, that the new Soviet-American cooperation does not mean exclusion of other countries from the decision-making process in Europe.

Brezhnev and Pompidou were expected to be in conflict on the French refusal to participate in force reduction talks and Paris' opposition to any discussions of nuclear limitation.

While the Soviets regard France as a Western ally, the French see their attitude as a guarantee of independence outside the two big blocs.

The French have some leverage in their dealings with the Soviets at the moment because Pompidou will be visiting China in September. The Chinese attitude toward the superpowers is similar to that of the French. The Russians would not like to see Paris and Peking draw closer together.

Brezhnev also is expected to sound out the French on cooperating more with one of his pet projects, the Helsinki European security talks.

The French have taken a hard position on insisting that Soviet bloc countries agree to open more to the West.

State tax credit plan jeopardized

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Minnesota's two-year-old system of granting tax credits to parents of parochial school children appears to be jeopardized by Monday's U.S. Supreme Court rulings.

The state program will remain in effect unless declared unconstitutional by the Minnesota Supreme Court, which has the case under consideration.

The state law was upheld in a district court ruling last year by Judge J. Jerome Plunkett of St. Paul. Briefs are due July 6 in the appeal, brought by the Minnesota Civil Liberties Union and the Minnesota Coordinating Committee for Public Education.

The state Supreme Court probably won't put the case on its calendar until next January at the earliest, and possibly not until the spring term of 1974.

Until then, the new rulings won't affect the state law. But the Minnesota program appears to be in deep trouble because of the high court decisions.

New York's law for granting aid to parents of private school children was struck down even though it gave the tax benefits to the parent rather than the school.

The effect, the high court ruled, was "advancing religion in violation of the First Amendment."

"If the grants are offered as an incentive to parents to send their children to sectarian schools by making unrestricted cash payments to them, the Establishment Clause is violated whether or not the actual dollars eventually find their way into the sectarian institutions," said the majority opinion.

That appears to ruin the argument cited by backers of the Minnesota law; that is, that the money goes to the parents and not to the schools.

Minnesota's program allows parents of private elementary school students to subtract up to $100 a year from the amount of income tax they would otherwise pay to the state. For parents of secondary students, the figure is $140.

The New York law was similar in that it used tax credits.

The high court also knocked down Pennsylvania's aid plan, and affirmed a federal panel's finding last year that declared Ohio's plan unconstitutional.

The Minnesota program paid tax credits or refunds totaling almost $20 million for 1972 and 1973. The cost is estimated to be $11.9 million in 1974 and $12.3 million in 1975.

LeRoy Brown, education director of the Minnesota Catholic Conference, pointed out that the New York law provides for deductions from gross income while the Minnesota statute allows deductions from taxes.

"It is upon such differences that constitutionality often rests," he said.

Brown advised parochial schools in Minnesota not to "make any rash decisions." He said parents should continue sending their children to parochial schools because "the situation in Minnesota really has not changed."

State Tax Commissioner Arthur C. Roemer said his office "will continue to administer the law until it is held unconstitutional by a court."

Coadjutor Archbishop Leo C. Byrne of the Archdiocese of St. Paul Minneapolis said in a statement that he regrets the Supreme Court decision.

"We renew our intention to continue every Catholic school possible," the archbishop added.

A spokesman for the MCLU said he was delighted with the high court decisions.

"I don't see how the Minnesota Supreme Court can rule against us now," said Michael Wetherbee, Minneapolis, counsel for MCLU.

Population of alderwomen in Wisconsin falls

MONROE, Wis. (AP) — The state's population of alderwomen continued to dwindle this week. The latest official countdown was at the suggestion of the alderman herself.

Mayor Cliff Reasa opened a city council meeting with the question of whether council member Shirley Mitchell should be titled an alderman.

It is somewhat difficult to pronounce "alderwoman," the mayor said. He noted the Madison City Attorney recently declared that ordinances and state statutes do not recognize any label other than "alderman."

Monroe's city attorney, William Schmitz, similarly investigated the statutes.

"According to the statutes of 1898," Schmitz began when Mrs. Mitchell interrupted with: "I'm not that old."

She resolved the matter by agreeing to be known as an alderman, remarking: "All my life I have wanted to be a man."

A woman member of the Madison council similar said it mattered little if she were called alderman, saying the only annoyance was the mail which is occasionally addressed: "Dear sir."

No budget progress

Expenditures may stay unchanged

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — State agencies were advised Monday to be prepared to hold expenditures at current levels if a 1974-75 state budget does not become law by July 1.

Joe E. Nusbaum, secretary of the Department of Administration, told agency heads in a letter that budget officials believe it would be "difficult under the most optimistic conditions" to meet the July 1 deadline.

Three Senate Republicans and three Assembly Democrats have been working with fiscal advisers for several weeks in an effort to work out differences between the two houses over Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's proposed $2.7 billion budget.

If it is not enacted by the end of the month, the state will have to get along on the $1.9 billion spending program authorized by the 1971 legislature for the two-year fiscal period which ends June 30.

In his letter, Nusbaum said each agency must monitor its rate of expenditures to assure it does not exceed the authorized level for 1972-73.

"Agencies will have to absorb any cost increases, such as merit pay for employees, if the budget does not pass," Nusbaum said.

Nusbaum said current revenue estimates indicate there should be no problem in financing state programs at the 1972-73 levels, because increased business has meant increased taxes and state revenues.

But, he said, if revenues should decline, his department is authorized by law to reduce appropriations to the agencies.

Illinois parochial aid sponsor sees some room for optimism

By JOSEPH R. TYBOR

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — "Good things don't come easy," says the chief sponsor of Illinois parochial aid legislation, who remains confident that at least part of an Illinois plan might remain intact despite the U.S. Supreme Court setback for state aid to nonpublic schools.

Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said he is quite optimistic that at least two-thirds of the Illinois law on parochial aid will be constitutionally upheld.

But Michael J. Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction, said the Supreme Court's action Monday placed the Illinois parochial aid law "in serious jeopardy."

The court's decision held that tax deductions for parents of nonpublic school children were a violation of the First Amendment guarantees of church and state separation. It also rejected state aid in the form of reimbursement for textbooks, which is a feature of the Schlickman-sponsored legislation which passed the general assembly last year and is now awaiting the outcome of a challenge in the Illinois Supreme Court.

The Illinois plan provides aid to parents of nonpublic school children in three areas: textbooks and auxiliary services such as special testing and counseling; cash grants, paid on a voucher basis to poor families whose children attend nonpublic schools; and state grants to fund new programs instituted on a joint-cooperative basis between public and nonpublic schools.

Schlickman said he is confident of the Illinois plan except for the provision which offers tuition repayment to poor families.

Bakalis, at a news conference shortly after he heard of the Supreme Court decision, took a dimmer view.

"I'm not optimistic our parochial aid legislation will fare very well," he said. "It is my non-lawyer's opinion that parochial aid in Illinois is in very serious jeopardy."

Schlickman said the fate of the Illinois plan is difficult to predict before the Supreme Court decision is studied.

He based his optimism, however, on a ruling also handed down Monday by the Illinois Supreme Court which, too, dealt with a form of state aid to nonpublic schools.

The ruling of the Illinois court upheld a section of the school code which required school boards to provide the same transportation along their regular routes for both nonpublic and public school pupils.

The decision said that the particular section of the statute "neither advances nor inhibits religion... does not foster any excessive government entanglement with religion and that any benefit to the parochial school which the children attend is incidental."

Schlickman also noted that although the U.S. court's decision struck down a law providing reimbursement for textbooks, that does not necessarily mean Illinois' law providing similar reimbursement will be declared unconstitutional.

Flyers endorse objectives of three who quit

LA CROSSE, Wis. — Members of the La Crosse Area Flyers' Inc. expressed their support Thursday for three former airport officials who resigned June 14 because of a proposed educational television tower, to be erected near La Crosse, which they said would hamper air safety.

James Cote, airport manager, and Robert D. Johns Sr., and Harry Wiggert, both aviation board members, received a letter from club flyers saying that they supported the past and present objectives of the three men. The club members also added that the La Crosse airport has, in recent years, become one of the finest airports in the Midwest because of the dedicated efforts of the three officials.

The three resigned following a June 13 meeting of the Houston County Board of Commissioners, which granted a conditional-use permit to allow a 669-foot tower to be constructed 6 1/2 miles southwest of La Crosse Municipal Airport.

Airport officials argued that the tower would obstruct air navigation.

Benicia, 32 miles northeast of San Francisco, was California's capital from 1853-1864.

All job slots in youth plan filled in county

According to Ray Brown director of the Winona office, Minnesota Manpower Services, all job slots in Winona County under the Governor's Youth Program have been filled.

There are a total of 725 youth placements in the county, Brown said. Approximately 75 are under the program passed at the recent session of the legislature.

STATE FUNDING of the youth program amounted to $14,195 for the city of Winona, and $9,650 for the remainder of the county. In addition to that, Brown said, Winona County received another $12,000 in federal funding which is being used for a youth summer employment program.

Also filled under the youth program were the 17 job slots in Houston County which received a total of $4,600 in state funding. The 12 job slots in Wabasha County are expected to be filled by Wednesday. State funding there included $3,800 for Wabasha County, and $1,000 for Lake City.

The Winona office serves both counties.

FILLMORE County, served by the Rochester State Department of Manpower Services office, received a total of $8,583. Forty-five applications had been taken there, and there were some job slots unfilled.

The program is for persons between the ages of 16 and 22. Those hired will receive $1.60 per hour, and work about 30 hours per week during the 10-week program.

Quie votes with House to cut off war funds

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Breaking a long record, 1st District Rep. Albert H. Quie Monday voted against the Nixon Administration's Southeast Asian war policies.

Quie voted with the House majority in passing the Eagleton amendment to a military appropriations bill cutting off all funds for bombing in Cambodia or Laos.

Quie, a Republican, also voted against a move to postpone the effective date of the amendment.

As recently as May 10, Quie had voted against cutting off funds for the bombing. Explaining his change in position, he said, "On such votes in the past, there always existed the possibility or imminence of negotiations that could produce an end to the fighting."

The May 10 vote came just before Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Thieu were to resume talks in Paris.

"Now," Quie said, "with no further negotiations scheduled and with all the American POW's home, there just doesn't seem to be any further excuse for United States military involvement."

State road toll boosted to 377 by man's death

EAST GRAND FORKS, Minn. (AP) — The death of a Warren man in a car truck accident has boosted the 1973 Minnesota road toll to 377, compared with 398 on this date last year.

Authorities said Thomas Janowski, 52, Warren, was killed Monday night when the car he was driving turned into the path of a semi trailer truck hauling grain.

The driver of the truck, Larry Wright, 22, Minot, N.D., was not seriously injured.

The accident occurred at the intersection of U.S. 2 and Minn. 220 in Grand Forks.

Items valued at $660 taken from office

A burglary at the Dorey Hahn & Co. offices at 502 E. Broadway netted thieves $660 worth of equipment, according to Winona Chief of Police Robert Carstenbrock.

The burglars struck sometime after noon on Saturday and there was no sign of forced entry, Carstenbrock said.

Missing were 50 stereo tapes valued at $300, a calculating machine worth $275, a $10 travel clock and a tape recorder worth $75.

ADOLPH Mueller, Minnesota City, reported the theft of a box of fishing tackle from his truck while it was parked at East 3rd and Market streets between 7 and 10 p.m. Saturday. He valued the missing items at $75.

Judge A. L. Twesme, Galesville, Wis., reported to police the theft of two spotlights and a fire extinguisher from his boat moored at Dick's Marine, Municipal Boat Harbor, sometime after June 17. The items were worth $85.

Another theft from a boat at Dick's Marine was reported by Allyn Tews, Lewiston Rt. 1. The items were taken sometime after June 17 and include two steel tackle boxes, two spinning rods and reels, a fillet knife, a hunting knife and assorted tools. Loss estimate is $250.

Carstenbrock said that several items taken in local boat thefts during the past few weeks had been recovered and several local juveniles are involved. The investigation is continuing, he said.

MAUREEN THIRFT, 617 Lafayette St., reported the theft of her five-speed brown 26-inch Schwinn bicycle from her porch Thursday night. The vehicle carries license number 4841.

Carstenbrock said police had apprehended two Winona boys—13 and 16 years old—in the vicinity of Dick's Marine at 11:46 p.m. Monday. The youths were charged with curfew violation and have been turned over to juvenile authorities.

Three injured slightly in crash near Elba

Three persons were slightly injured but none hospitalized in a one-vehicle accident on CSAH 25 in Whitewater township about 3 1/2 miles northwest of Elba at 3:45 p.m. Monday.

According to Sheriff Helmer Weinmann, Caroline Riemann, Stockton, Minn., was driving south when the vehicle failed to make a curve and rolled over twice.

Melane Riemann, 15, Theresa Riemann, 9, and Douglas Waite, 8, received minor bruises and abrasions.

Elgin Cheese Days to open Wednesday

ELGIN, Minn. (Special) — The crowning of senior citizen royalty here Wednesday night will kick off this city's annual Elgin Cheese Days, which runs through Sunday.

The senior citizen royalty will be crowned at a potluck supper and coronation in Elgin Park Wednesday evening.

The event replaces the annual Miss Elgin queen pageant, which was canceled last week by Cheese Days organizers when not enough girls entered.

Gopher State Shows will be on Main Street here beginning Friday when the festival swings into high gear. There will also be a barbecue chicken stand throughout the festival and free cheese will be available.

A band concert will be held on Main Street at 8 p.m. Friday, followed by a teen dance in the fire hall.

The kiddie parade will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, followed by a garden tractor pull contest on Main Street in front of the fire hall. The fire hall will also be the scene Saturday night of the annual Fireman's Ball.

Highlighting the weekend's activities will be the grand parade, which begins at 1:30 p.m. Sunday. The Chatfield Brass Band will perform following the parade.

Ambulance service contract prepared

The Goodview Village Council was told Monday night that Village Attorney Kent A. Gernander is preparing a proposed contract for ambulance service.

The proposed contract would be between a number of villages and townships in Winona County, including Goodview, and Praxel Ambulance Service for providing ambulance service in the area.

The Winona County Board of Commissioners April 1 ended a contract with Praxel, and all of the county except the city of Winona has been without ambulance service since then.

A final agreement between the governments and Praxel has not yet been reached, but the Gernander-drafted proposed contract will be presented at the next meeting of the group. No date is set for that meeting.

In other action Monday night, Goodview councilmen instructed Gernander to draft an ordinance embracing the state building code, which took effect in July 1972.

Councilmen reached no decision on what equipment to use for mowing the Winona Diocese property west of 44th Avenue between 8th and 9th streets that will be used for a village playground. Council members agreed the property should be moved to control weeds.

Bids will be taken at 8 p.m. July 23 for purchase of a new tractor and loader.

Councilmen noted that four public hearings are scheduled this week on special assessments:

• At 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, a hearing is slated on improvement of 5th Street from the west limits east 605 feet.

• At 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, a hearing is scheduled on improvements on 9th Street and 49th Avenue.

• At 7:30 p.m. Thursday, councilmen will hold a hearing on a water main extension on 44th Avenue north of 6th Street.

• At 8:30 p.m. Thursday, a hearing is set on sanitary sewer extension on 9th Street from 49th Avenue to 54th Avenue.

Action delayed on Lake City NSP rate fight

LAKE CITY, Minn. — According to Gary Darland, Lake City utilities superintendent, no action has been taken yet on the proposed 30 percent average rate hike by Northern States Power Co.

Lake City has joined at least 13 municipal utility companies to fight the proposed rate. "The Federal Power Commission has set July 14 as the final date we can intervene," Darland said.

Darland last week accompanied a group to Washington, D.C., where a consulting firm to study the NSP proposal was hired and Attorney Ruben Goldberg, formerly affiliated with the Federal Power Commission, retained.

Lake City faces a 31.4 percent increase in the recent request by NSP to the Federal Power Commission to raise wholesale rates affecting 16 communities. According to Darland, the rate will be higher. He anticipates the increase will be from 32 to 34 percent the first year and more after that.

For Lake City, the 31.4 percent increase would mean an increase from $485,359 to $632,618 annually.

The 16 community companies which might be affected include 14 municipally owned wholesalers in Minnesota, one in South Dakota, and one private company. NSP requested the raise to bring profits from total requirement wholesale business (businesses which rely on one source, NSP, for electricity) in line with other customers.

Citing 1972 figures, NSP contends the profit from the 16 communities was 4.24 percent, while profit in other areas averaged 7.7 percent. Rising costs of fuel, labor, materials, taxes and facilities was the basis of the increase request.

Dakota native takes post at Iowa college

A Winona area native has been appointed assistant professor of mathematics at Loras College, Dubuque, Iowa.

He is Dr. Marvin C. Papenfuss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Papenfuss, Dakota, Minn.

He is a 1963 graduate of Winona Senior High School who received his bachelor of science degree from Winona State College in mathematics in 1966, his master of science degree in mathematics from Iowa State University in 1972.

Since joining the Loras faculty in 1972 he has submitted a research paper to the Society of Industrial and Applied Mathematics for publication.

He's a member of the American Mathematical Society and has been active in student-oriented mathematical activities at Loras.

He and his wife, the former Linda Schultz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Schultz, Arcadia, Wis., have a two-year-old daughter, Tracey.

Business report seminar scheduled

A two-hour public seminar in business report writing will be conducted by John Hauenstein, industrial relations director, Peerless Chain Co., Wednesday at 11 a.m. in Room 210, Performing Arts Center, Winona State College.

The session will include written and oral communication problems and how to make oral and written reports, plus discussions on the company handbook, policies, benefits and labor relations. Dr. Stephen J. Turille, professor of business at WSC, will chair the session.

Drunken driving hearing adjourned

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — A hearing in Trempealeau County Court on a drunken driving charge today was adjourned, for the second time, until July 17.

John H. Quinn Jr., Holmen, Wis., was cited following a two-car accident May 20, about two miles south of Galesville, Wis., on Highway 53.

The original hearing was set for June 6, then adjourned until today.

Trial is continuing in bridge accident case

WABASHA, Minn. (Special) — The criminal action which started Monday at Wabasha County District Court before Wabasha County District Judge Glenn E. Kelley is expected to continue through Wednesday.

Jerome Rick, 33, Kellogg, Minn., has been charged with criminal negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle causing a death. The State of Minnesota is plaintiff.

THE CASE involves a three-car accident at about 9 p.m. Aug. 18, 1972, on the old Zumbro River Bridge on Highway 61 near Kellogg. Mrs. Francis Flies, 58, Rochester, Minn., driver of one of the vehicles, died at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Wabasha, where she had been taken by ambulance, about 10 minutes after her admission.

The request of Rick's attorney, David Shulman, Wabasha, to sequester witnesses, was allowed by Judge Kelley. The defendant is also represented by attorney Peter Ekstrand, Wabasha.

Prosecuting attorneys are Gilbert Buffington, assistant attorney general, St. Paul, Minn., and Jerome Schreiber, Wabasha County attorney.

In his opening statement, Buffington said the state would prove Rick had been drinking, and told of the collision leading to the death of Mrs. Flies.

FIRST WITNESS for the state was Dr. D. G. Mahle, Wabasha, who treated Mrs. Flies at the hospital, and performed an autopsy following her death. His deposition listed Mrs. Flies in a comatose condition with crushed chest, ribs broken on both sides and a badly collapsed lung. She lived from 10 to 15 minutes after her arrival at the hospital, he said.

Francis Flies, Rochester, husband of the dead woman, said he and his wife had arrived at the Idle Hour Cafe, Wabasha, at about 7 p.m. Aug. 18. They had dinner and had left the cafe at about 9 p.m. His wife was driving and when they arrived at the bridge, he said, the car was traveling about 30 miles an hour. He noticed a car coming across the bridge, heard a solid bang and remembered nothing from that point, he said.

He suffered a broken collar bone, fractured ribs, a back injury, lacerations and many body bruises.

Also testifying were Thomas C. Young, editor of the Wabasha Herald, and David Brenner, Wabasha County deputy sheriff. Young said he had taken pictures of the three cars involved in the accident the following day, and Brenner that he had taken pictures at the accident scene. The pictures were entered as evidence.

LAWRENCE BINNER, Wabasha, said he was on his way home from work at the Standard Station in Kellogg in his pickup truck. He noticed the right signal light of the Flies car flashing as he was crossing the bridge. All at once there was a flash as the Flies car hit the bridge. He stopped his pickup, and the Rick vehicle hit the pickup.

Binner said he was uninjured and started to walk to Kellogg to summon help, then saw a car arrive at the scene. Both cars were badly wrecked he said.

Wabasha County Deputy Sheriff James Krusmark said he was called to the accident scene at about 9:30 p.m. Mrs. Flies was bleeding badly, he said, and he said he tried to stop the bleeding, then summoned two ambulances and a wrecker to remove the cars. It was raining hard when the cars were removed, he said.

Krusmark said there were beer bottles in the rear seat of the Rick car and when he helped load Rick into the ambulance he could detect the odor of beer. He introduced the drawing of the accident scene on his accident report which was received as an exhibit.

DONALD HAGER, former county deputy sheriff now employed in Lake City, Minn., also investigating, corroborated Krusmark's testimony.

Final testimony Monday was given by Andrew Schouweier, Kellogg High School student. He said when he arrived at the scene before the deputies arrived, the Flies car was on its side with Mrs. Flies pinned underneath. Flies was in the car calling for help. Rick was lying on the roadway. Someone released Flies from the car by opening the door on the upper side, he said.

Jurors selected to hear the case are Elmer Brunkhorst, Dwain Dose, Morris Heikman, and Mrs. Marilyn Myers, Lake City; Mrs. Lorraine Coen, Maize; Mrs. Bernetta Haaska, Zumbro Falls; Mrs. Irene Hall, Plainview; Mrs. Elsie Heaser, Weaver; Miss Rita Kreidermacher and Mrs. Leo Newman, Kellogg; Mrs. Steve Melner, Minneapolis, and Mrs. Jerry Jo Ostrom, Wabasha.

Testimony resumed at 1:30 p.m. today.

Committee OK's dike study funds

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The House Appropriations Committee Monday approved and sent to the House floor a bill that would appropriate $70,000 for flood control planning for Winona.

Approval by the full House is expected for the funding, which will complete preliminary planning by the Army Corps of Engineers for the un-built portion of the city's permanent dike system.

The $70,000 is for fiscal 1974, which begins next week. Added to the $60,000 appropriated this fiscal year, the Corps has now obtained the $130,000 necessary to complete preliminary planning for the dike system.

Winona City Manager Paul Schriever said he was pleased by the committee's action since the federal Office of Management and Budget had recommended only a $50,000 appropriation which city officials had argued would be insufficient to complete preliminary planning.

The committee's action now, Schriever said, should speed up the dike project — already five years behind its original schedule — by about a year.

In addition Schriever said, the action indicates the city is now "tuned in" to the federal pipeline and further funds will come more easily.

The city next year will likely ask for $800,000 for final planning for the project and, if things go according to schedule, will return to Congress in 1977 asking for about $12 million to finish the dike system here.

The permanent dike stands about half-completed, with city-built temporary dikes protecting the remainder of the city.

Other Minnesota appropriations approved Monday were $1.5 million for construction at Big Stone Lake, $3.25 million for construction at Mankato and North Mankato, and $30,000 for planning on Wild Rice River.

CST professor receives grant

Dr. Antonio E. Alonso, associate professor of modern languages at the College of Saint Teresa, has been awarded a Foreign Student Adviser grant.

The award was made by the Field Service Program of the National Association for Foreign Student Affairs.

The grant makes provision for Dr. Alonso for him to visit and study foreign student programs in the U.S.

He intends to visit Iowa State University, Ames, and Washington University, St. Louis, Mo.

Funds for the grants are provided by the State Department.

Dr. Alonso and his family live at 576 Wacouta St.

Sherburne bid accepted for garbage hauling

SPRING GROVE, Minn. (Special) — At a special meeting of the Spring Grove Village Council, the lowest bid for garbage collection, submitted by Donald Sherburne, was accepted.

He will begin collection next week and will haul the garbage to the Houston County landfill. The Spring Grove dump grounds will be closed Sunday.

Charges per household will be $2.50 per month. Pickups will be on Thursdays. Billing will be by village on the electric bill.

For businesses the charge will be $1 for the first hopper, 50 cents for each additional one. Pickups will be arranged by business place and hauler.

May bank debits rise 26 percent

May bank debits in Winona showed a 26 percent increase over the same month a year ago, according to statistics released by the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis.

In dollars, the May debit volume was $80,415,000 pushing the cumulative January-May figure for this year to $360,535, up 19 percent from the first five months of 1972.

Bank debits represent the volume of checks drawn by depositors against their bank accounts and since most are for payments of goods, services and debts, are considered an indicator of business activity in a community.

Statewide, the May volume of May debits for reporting cities increased 20 percent from May last year.

The volume of debits reported by the total sample of district cities for May was up 28 percent from a year ago.

U.W. chancellor says merger is the best answer

FONTANA, Wis. (AP) —
Certifying the University of Wisconsin Center and Extension systems would save money and give the extension system more statewide exposure, UW-Stevens Point Chancellor Lee S. Dreyfus said during the weekend.

Dreyfus told state Chamber of Commerce directors that such a merger would provide administrative savings and make the Extension's role in the system more visible.

"The centers themselves would become the visible presence of Extension," he said.

Dreyfus also said he favored ceilings on freshman class sizes at the 27 campuses, a proposal that has been opposed by the UW central administration.

Class limits would protect the state's investment and assure that personnel at one campus would not have to be laid off while student funds caused an other campus to be crowded, he said.

Proposed marriage law changes hit

By JONATHAN P. WOLMAN
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Tampering with traditional marriage laws could endanger a Christian foundation on which America was founded, the Assembly's Judiciary Committee was told Monday.

A hearing room was crowded during discussions of bills introduced by Rep. Lloyd Barbee,
D-Milwaukee, to modify state marriage statutes.

Barbee, the committee chairman, proposes to legalize homosexual marriage, group marriage and polygamy.

Mrs. R.B. Brinsmead of Madison took on all the proposals at once, saying: "This country is a Christian country. These bills wipe out the whole concept of marriage."

She said passing the legislation would reduce humans to a level "lower than that of animals" and produce a Soviet-type society.

She told the committee the country's Christianity was provided for in the Constitution and said that to adopt the measures could "erase all decency."

Barbee said the only restriction on marriage should "be based on genetics."

He said there were serious new religious, with new ideas of marriage, and asked that the measures be given serious con-

Blowing tribute to Satchmo

Earl Wilson

NEW YORK — The late, great trumpet of Louis Armstrong throbbed again at the Rainbow Room. The man with the horn was Wild Bill
Davison of Defiance, O., and Swing St., New York. He was blowing Louis Armstrong's unforgettable
theme, "Sleepy Time Down South."

Few of us will ever get such a tribute as Louis did two years after we've departed.

The occasion was the New Orleans Jazz & Food Festival at the Rainbow Room honoring Louis' widow Lucille, a silver-haired bouclady in a flowered dress, who was merely ushering in a whole month for Louis.

David Frost, arm around Lucille, praising Louis' remarkable performances, asked Wild Bill: "Play something typical of Louis."

Wild Bill played "Sleepy
Time Down South" — again.

With a stadium, a status and a museum for Louis in the works, Lucille Armstrong is shining as few widows ever do. Rightfully so, because she kept Louis blowing that horn. Actress Rosette Le Noir of "Streetcar Named Desire" came to the party and kissed Lucille — and remembered her in the show "Hot Mikado" in 1939

— when Lucille was called
"Brown Sugar."

Did it ever occur to you — "Nobody ever thinks short girls have bosoms"?
Sally Struthers of "All In the Family" complained at a CBS-TV fashion forum that since she's short, she has trouble getting fitted properly in that area because everybody thinks shorts are under-developed, whereas,
she says, she's over-developed. "It's very sad," says
Sally.

Debbie Reynolds rushed over from "Irene" to Molly Bern's swinging party at 21 for Benay Venuta, who's going to Europe to sculpt and look for romance. Debbie'll remain in "Irene" till January, then go to Las Vegas in March. . . . An outstanding beauty at 21 was Alana
King from Miami Beach.
Her late father, a Surfside

judge, was named Alan King — and he added an a to her name. . . . Ari and Jackie Onassis were in a rented limousine that allegedly sideswiped a car carrying 17-year-old Jane Mitchell and an escort in mid-Manhattan around May 1. The boy's leg was kept in a cast;
the girl, whose head went through the windshield, was saved because she happened to have on a pith helmet.

Assemblyman criticizes collection

By RONALD W. BROWNE
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — It is time for the state to get out of the business of being a collection agency for beer and liquor wholesalers, an Assembly committee was told Monday.

Rep. David O'Malley, D-Waukegan, censured a law which requires a retailer to pay his wholesale liquor bill within 30 days and his beer bill in 15 days or risk revocation of his license.

O'Malley told the Excise and Fees Committee the law is not administered fairly, saying some owners are allowed to postpone payments beyond the statutory limits while others get into hot water over situations not entirely their fault.

"There is no justification for keeping the state in the collection business," Rep. Edward Nager, D-Madison, said. "It is time to stop treating taverns as second-class businesses," he said.

Maury Hassell of Milwaukee, representing the Wisconsin Wholesale Beer Distributors Association, spoke in opposition to the attempt to repeal the law.

He said the statute has kept irresponsible persons from engaging in questionable business.

The law dates to experiences during Prohibition when manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers engaged in shady practices, Hassell said.

"Before the passage of this law, 86 per cent of the retailers who engaged in prostitution, gambling, selling after hours and selling to minors also were in debt," Hassell said.

"They would engage in those practices because they did not have anything to lose," he said.

Hassell said 36 states require a cash payment. California levies a penalty of one per cent a month on unpaid balances, he said.

Other states allow no time lapse between receipt of goods and cash payment, he said.

As for accusations that the law is discriminatory, he compared to Wisconsin law on the sale of dairy products.

"Penalties for these violations are 10 times greater than those for liquor," he said.

Peter Wolgramm, licensing coordinator for the City of Madison, said many distributors do not report violations of the credit law until "about a week before license renewal time."

"We are a little sick and tired of having to collect money for the wholesalers," he said. Wolgramm told the committee he is holding back approximately 60 licenses for non-payment of bills, some of which are near $5,000.

"Wholesalers do not worry about it because they know once a year they are going to get their money because the state collects it for them," Wolgramm said.

He said beer and liquor license renewals alone take three staff members up to four weeks to process at an estimated cost of $15,000.

"Why aren't wholesalers required to turn in delinquents at the time of the violation instead of a week before license renewal time?" he asked.

Walter Hirsch of Madison said his license was almost revoked for $1.86 because he deducted the amount for a broken bottle of wine.

The wholesaler overlooked the adjusted payment and sent notice to the state, however, he said.

John C. Fritschler of Madison told the committee some wholesalers use the law to pressure retail outlets.

"They can report violations at any time, and if you get two violations in one license year, you automatically lose your license," he said.

Soybean growers to elect board members

Minnesota soybean growers will elect a 13-member Minnesota Soybean Promotion Board Thursday.

District 9, which includes Winona County, has the following nominees: Elmer Kleven and Dean Wright, West Concord; Richard Field, Byron; and Leo L. Bernard, Spring Valley. Voters will be eligible to write in the name of another candidate if they desire.

Polling place will be the Agricultural Extension Service offices with the voting hours from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m., according to Harry Burcalow, Winona County extension agent. There are approximately 300 growers in Winona County.

An estimated 50,000 Minnesota soybean producers will be eligible to vote in the election. Eligible are any persons who own or operate a soybean-growing facility and share in the profits and risks of loss from soybeans in the current or preceding market year.

Tornado near Brainerd levels resort, cottages

BRAINERD, Minn. (AP) — A lakeside resort and a handful of summer homes were demolished and at least six persons received minor injuries Monday evening when a tornado touched down east of Brainerd.

Area residents said the Indian Point Resort on the south shore of Bay Lake, 15 miles east of Brainerd, appeared hardest hit by the twister, which touched at least three times during a five-mile, 20-minute burst.

A. A. Miller Sr., who owned the resort before his son took it over, said the tornado destroyed the resort. "It's practically wiped out, entirely...I can't tell you how bad it is...when you see everything wiped out that you spent a lifetime on," Miller said.

Extensive damage also was reported at Eagle Lake to the west and Clearwater Lake, to the east.

The funnel cloud struck first at Eagle Lake, where it wiped out five or six cabins. It came down next at a Presbyterian camp on Clearwater Lake, damaging several buildings. Later it struck the Indian Point Resort and destroyed eight cabins at Knief's Shoreacres Resort on Bay Lake.

After the tornado, a resident at Indian Point Resort said of the scene: "That cabin was over there, this one over there and that one (pointing to a cabin in the lake) was ours."

Miller said most of the resort residents took refuge in the lodge basement before the twister hit, while others crowded under a table in the recreation room.

Most of the damage to the cabins and automobiles in the area was done by falling trees, which were snapped and tossed about by the twister winds.

The only injury reported at Indian Point was to Muriel Miller, wife of resort owner A. A. Miller Jr. Mrs. Miller was hospitalized in good condition at Crosby.

A Minneapolis Star and Tribune Co. executive and his wife also were among the injured. Bower Hawthorne, Edina, vice-president for public affairs of the firm, was treated and released from a Brainerd hospital. Mrs. Hawthorne was hospitalized in satisfactory condition with lacerations.

Warren again attacks Lucey budget proposal

APPLETON, Wis. (AP) — Republican spokesmen paraded fiscal statistics Monday in response to Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's remarks about the GOP's role in Wisconsin's budget deadlock.

Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren, the top Republican state office holder, said the budget which Lucey proposes for the 1973-75 fiscal biennium would provide the governor with a costly "personal bureaucracy."

Senate GOP members of a budget conference committee were accused last week by Lucey of purely partisan stalling on adoption of a budget, which is to go into effect July 1.

Lucey said he and Democrats, whose budget proposal was approved in the Assembly before the Senate rejected it, are ready "for a long and bitter battle if that is what Republican senators want."

Warren, in remarks for an Outagamie County Republican spankfest, or pig roast, directed his comments at what he calls Lucey's attempts to double the size of the governor's bureaucracy.

"When Pat Lucey took office," in 1971, Warren said, "the budget for the governor's office staff was $240,000 a year. Next biennium, if the governor has his way, his personal bureaucracy will cost you, the taxpayers, $1,047,800."

In Madison, newly elected state Republican chairman David Sullivan accused Lucey of further polarizing the Democrats and Republicans on the budget compromise committee.

In a letter to the governor, Sullivan asked him to "reconsider the ill-advised decision" that remaining budget issues are "non-negotiable."

"This attitude represents the same tunnel vision which your 'non-negotiable budget' in the last session imposed a totally unjustified and capricious quarter-billion-dollar increase in the burden of Wisconsin's tax-tormented families," Sullivan wrote.

Warren, a contender for the GOP nomination for governor next year, cited Lucey in the area of the state payroll.

EPA water probe to take several weeks

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's investigation into asbestos contamination of Lake Superior will be completed by July 27, says an EPA spokesman.

Completion of the study will come five days before the federal government's trial starts in U.S. District Court, Minneapolis, against Reserve Mining Co.

The government seeks to halt the Silver Bay, Minn., firm from discharging taconite tailings into Lake Superior.

The EPA recently identified the waste rock as the probable source of the fibers in the lake which serves as the municipal water supply of Duluth and several other North Shore communities.

Asbestos is known to cause cancer when inhaled with air but it is not known now whether swallowing the fibers with water poses a health hazard.

The July 27 deadline was announced Monday by Dr. Richard Trautman, head of the EPA air monitoring team at Duluth.

Trautman said the completion date applies to all phases of the investigation — field sampling of water and air, water supply treatment technology and alternative water supply evaluation.

Meanwhile, an associate of consumer advocate Ralph Nader arrived in Duluth Monday.

Dr. Robert H. Harris said he plans to devote several days to looking at the situation before making a comprehensive report to Nader.

The data obtained in the Lake Superior studies will be used in future Nader appearances before congressional committees on water quality matters he said.

Harris is an assistant professor of environmental engineering at the University of Maryland.

BRF candidate defeated in church election

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — A new position among Protestants was staked out today as a major denomination concluded that a terminally ill person—by his choice or that of relatives—should be allowed to die without unusual measures to keep his body functioning.

"We do not believe... the continuance of mere physical existence is either morally defensible, socially desirable or God's will," declared the United Church of Christ.

"We believe there comes a time in the course of an irreversible terminal illness when, in the interest of love, mercy and compassion, those who are caring for a patient should say: 'Enough.'"

Acting at its national governing synod, the 2-million-member denomination became the first major Protestant church to take that official position on the issue, although Pope Paul VI has indicated a similar view.

He said recently that "heroic" medical measures may not be warranted to maintain mere physical processes when an irreversibly terminal illness has deprived a person of conscious human personality.

As the United Church put it: "Our religious heritage... requires equal regard for both body and spirit. Accordingly, over-regard for the body, without proper concern for the needs of the person or the human spirit, can become a kind of biological idolatry."

On other matters, the Church also:

• After extensive debate, directed that all duly prepared church literature, worship materials and hymnals be purged of male-oriented terminology, such as "brotherhood of man," so as to be inclusive of women.

• Completed balloting in a race for church vice moderator, electing a young white layman, Charles W. Flicker of Seattle, Wash., over a Winnebago Indian candidate, Peter Thundercloud of Black River Falls, Wis.

The Supreme Court's vote for decency

Most Americans, we suspect, have welcomed the Supreme Court's decisions establishing new standards for obscenity to bring more published and filmed material within the concept and authorizing variations in the application of the standards.

As for the definition, the 1957 definition remains: "Whether to the average person, applying contemporary community standards, the dominant theme of the material taken as a whole appeals to prurient interest," except that the criterion of "utterly without redeeming social importance" has been eliminated.

As for variations, the Supreme Court is encouraging states to develop their own guidelines for the standards; that is, the court is saying in effect that there is not just one way to interpret the standards. A community — that is the state — may make its own decisions. If a community wants to allow a film such as "Deep Throat," fine; if not, then we can prohibit it.

The court it seems is reflecting the inevitable negative reaction to permissiveness. The pendulum may be swinging back.

Certainly freedom of speech and the press will be invoked to denounce the court's decision and certainly this is not the last time that the court will need to wrestle with this difficult problem; but most Americans will not long tolerate the assault on decency.

A long time ago — in 1775 — a French libertine writer whose openness might have surprised today's avant-garde wrote this about decency:

"Perhaps, we are unaware of it ourselves, but even though everything we understand as principle and decency is so much discredited these days, we still feel a need for it." — A.B.

On the other hand...

The argument against the Supreme Court obscenity decision is that adults should be permitted to set their own standards.

One of the Upper Midwest's leading newspapers — in another state — put it this way Sunday:

"A cardinal principle of a free society is that government should refrain from imposing the ideas and tastes of any segment of society on others. . . . lawmakers and prosecutors would be wise to respect the rights of adults to be treated as free adults."

That was in one editorial.

There was another one. In that one the newspaper chastised the state's university press for publishing a certain book. "We Don't Know How: An Independent Audit of What They Call Success in Foreign Assistance," by William and Elizabeth Padcock. The press, says the editorial, should not have published the book.

Oh, well, we're not innocent of inconsistency either. — A.B.

Neighborly humor

Our neighbor says that a century ago they either had bad storms or fast builders; witness this from the 100 years column of this past Sunday: "J. Smith's big shed blew down for the third time this morning."

And another neighbor offers this diagnosis of the Nixon administration health: "Nixon's got staph infection." — A.B.

A young college may die today

The board of trustees of Lea College at Albert Lea is scheduled to meet today, and the major decision, it is predicted, will be to close the college that was founded in 1965.

It was the president of the college who made that prediction last week after Albert Lea bankers had voted not to extend additional credit to the struggling institution.

Lea was founded to cater to the drop-out, copying to some extent the successful formula of Parsons in Iowa, which now has gone into bankruptcy.

Earlier this year, confronted with budget problems compounded by a declining enrollment, Lea College decided to switch out of liberal arts and instead to train people for industry — any industry that would provide substantial financial support. The president said he was successful, but the industries demanded community support, too. So when the bankers voted no and when the community didn't seem ready to accept another fund raising campaign, the stage was set for today's meeting.

Sad, sad that the ambitious Albert Lea community could not attract the support to stabilize the young college. We suspect that the final accounting will reveal that it has been a costly adventure. Still we admire that community much more than one — somewhat richer — which says they must have a four-year college and that the Minnesota taxpayers must provide it. — A.B.

these die proofs sold for $59,000, which went into FDR's estate.

While FDR was governor, his son James got a job at $15,000 per year. He said later, "I wasn't being kidded. I knew perfectly well they were paying me for my name. I... needed the money." When the family entered the White House, James became a partner in the insurance firm of Roosevelt and Sargent, which solicited and wrote insurance for some of the biggest corporations in America that had business with the government. By 1939, James was making $100,000 per year, $25,000 more than his old man was making as President.

ELLIOTT Roosevelt's experiences were similar, as was his income.

Eleanor was something else. She went on radio, for fees, to sponsor toilet preparations. She got $1,000 per week from a group of Latin American coffee producers to talk up coffee. When candy manufacturers during the war became concerned that their product might be classed as "non-essential," they got Mrs. FDR to make three appearances on their radio program at $1,500 for the first two and $2,500 for the third.

But personal greed aside, what about the sanctity of the democratic process? Harry Hopkins had more money even than CREP at his disposal: over three billion dollars in WPA money. Anxious to purge those who had opposed FDR's court packing plan, he used this money quite forthrightly, for instance in favor of Alben Barkley over Happy Chandler in Kentucky. Republicans on the rolls were told simply to change their registration.

The conscription of the regulatory agencies in the uses of presidential power was routine. A congressional committee investigating the corruption of the FCC by the Office of War Information concluded:

"OWI HAD the men and the material. It had the proper dye to color the news. It also had the desire to select and censor the news. What it lacked was the power, or perhaps more accurately stated, even the color of power, to carry their designs into effect. Hence the need to enlist the Federal Communications Commission in its purpose.

"... the FCC (had) the power to license and hence the power to compel obedience to its directions. The record now shows their unlawful use of this power." The FCC's subsidiary "division was not formed to instruct or supervise, or to correct. It was formed with the avowed purpose of unlawfully liquidating all of the radio personnel in the foreign language field that did not meet with its favor. A real Gestapo was created and a lawless enterprise was launched."

And so on. The sooner that kind of thing ceases the better, and if it is going to stop with the Nixon administration, why that will be one of its singular achievements.

Money, yes; ethics, no

change Commission has resigned, because of the irregularities surrounding $200,000 in cash delivered in a brown suitcase to the Committee for the Re-election of the President by Robert L. Vesco, the fugitive financier.

The inadequacies of existing laws are well illustrated by the fact that when CREP was found guilty on three counts of mishandling this gift — which even CREP ultimately found too smelly to keep — the committee could be fined only $1,000 each on each count. Forfeiting $3,000 after receiving $200,000 is a pretty good exchange in anybody's league.

Now the Cox inquiry is ordering a special investigation into whether or not methods of extortion were used by Republican fund-raisers in 1972, with corporations having legal problems with the government as special targets. This investigation also will look into allegations that some big Republican contributors were forced to hand over their gifts in cash, rather than by check — a practice that clearly ought to be illegal, and which ought to have aroused the suspicions of the contributors and of honest members of the campaign committee who might have learned of it.

THERE SEEMS to be no end to the suggestions of shady practices having to do with 1972 Republican campaign funds. What was John W. Dean 3d doing with $14,000 in cash from these funds last fall, and by what stretch of ethical practice could he or anyone justify his "borrowing" $4,000 to pay for his own honeymoon, whether or not he later repaid it?

How could a certified public accountant like Maurice Stans justify even to himself his having had a $55,000 cash fund in lieu of an official salary from CREP, or his willingness to turn over more thousands of contributors' cash to Herbert Kalmbach for unstated purposes, and with only Mr. Kalmbach's verbal assurance that the White House had authorized the transaction?

These are not dealings of men much concerned with the kind of niceties for which the law and the Internal Revenue Service holds the rest of us accountable.

Until Mr. Dean's honeymoon financing came to light, it had been generally supposed that whatever else Watergate represented, it was not the ordinary kind of graft scandal so frequent in American politics. But maybe it was after all; it is easy to believe that with so much cash lying around and so little strict accounting in evidence, somebody's pockets besides Gordon Liddy's might have been lined.

THE SENATE investigators now are turning to the question of the possible misuse of campaign funds in more traditional ways than paying off, and hiring lawyers for, the Watergate burglars; no wonder, when it has come to light also that Fred LaRue, once a special assistant to John Mitchell, rented his apartment to a businessman for whom he interceded with the Department of Agriculture, and that Mr. LaRue and Mr. Mitchell, while the latter was Attorney General, accepted rides on the same businessman's private plane.

All too plainly, and whatever laws may or may not have been broken, the sense of ethics of too many highly placed men in the Nixon Administration was sadly lacking. That fact, combined with too much money too eagerly given by too many compliant people, made Watergate and the cover-up possible, and the need for drastic change in election financing evident.

ments with the non-communist states over the last few years, it is easy to argue that Moscow had gained more than it has given. The present basis for negotiation rests on assumptions highly favorable to the USSR.

The Soviets have negotiated formal acceptance by the West of the wartime boundaries, which is a polite way of saying that the West has accepted the division of Germany, and the establishment of a Soviet sphere of influence in Eastern Europe, now occupied by Soviet troops.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union is getting from her former cold war adversaries the grain and the modern technology her own system has not been able to provide. This still troubles a lot of people here who would have preferred to see the communists crippled by the consequences of their own failures and who ask, what do we get out of all this?

The short answer in the short run is not much. Moscow wants credits now for the development of gas and other raw materials which will not be available for years to come. Her benefits are tangible and immediate, curs on the whole are intangible and remote, and yet there is something to be said for the administration's patient efforts to bring both the Soviet Union and China into closer contact with the changing and interdependent modern world.

IF BOTH sides come to believe that they do not have to live in fear of destruction by the other, it may be possible, to get the arms race under control. It will be a very slow business, but the nations of the world are now spending over $220 billion a year on their military establishments, and they are not likely to find the resources to deal with their growing populations until they can make substantial reductions in their defense budgets.

The Nixon-Brezhnev communiqué on the limitation of strategic offensive arms deals more in principle than in specifics. It does little more than give the SALT II negotiators new instructions to get back to Geneva and try to come up with "a permanent agreement on more complete measures" to control strategic weapons.

Both President Nixon and General Secretary Brezhnev are likely to be out of office long before the objectives of their agreements are reached, but they are keeping the process of negotiations going, and

June brings us honeysuckle, brides, lightning bugs, sunburn, leeches and mosquitoes but most of all it brings us summer reading. Let us then put aside that heavy itchy old winter reading and slip into something with ice cubes and lemon peels. Here, for starters, is a sample of the cooling matter now in your bookshop which should start all true summer readers shivering with dread:

Harley Bustard's predictable first novel, "Hellbound for America," is absolutely thirt-proof, and therefore makes the ideal decoration for a beach-house coffee table. The most reliable masochist will be unable to get past page 23. Normal book thieves will groan on page 2.

Bustard's hero, a restless young man who is profoundly but inarticulately dissatisfied with America, his generation, his family, his roots and the origins of Western civilization, buys a motorcycle and sets out across the country to find happiness and escape his sense of guilt for the destruction of Babylon. He bikes to San Francisco and has a ball with other colleagues in loss and guilt, only to discover that even fun fades in the end.

"The Jewish Wine Label Picture Book" is such a magnificent piece of color engraving that one wishes the great Jewish wines of the world were bottled under more picturesque labels than is, unfortunately, the case.

For contemporary bookmaking at its most extraneous, it will be hard to top "The Total Bind Catalogue." As a conversation piece alone, on that evening when you absolutely must have the Yacht Club set for cocktails, it may justify itself as a lifesaver. It will never justify itself as a book. It is a 756-page catalogue of every variety of string, rope, wire, chain and plastic clothesline made anywhere in the world. Unfortunately, it lacks illustrations, as well as instructions for tying a hangman's noose. A cinch for the National Book Award.

"American Despair" is the fantastically inarticulate first novel of young Sepoy Cassowary, whose hero buys an old car and sets out across America to find his roots, only to end up having a ball in San Francisco, Denver, New Orleans and Knoxville, Tenn. This is the novel everyone will talk about this summer because of Cassowary's outrageous break with literary tradition. Until now, no peripatetic first-novel hero has been permitted to have a ball in Knoxville.

"Great Mustaches of Hollywood" will feed a desperate hunger for film buffs who have exhausted the literature of Bogart, Fields, the Marx Brothers, Lionel Atwill and Alan Curtis. Here they are — all the great mustaches of the golden era of the silver screen.

Dr. Helmut Gossage's new diet book, "Slim Like A Butterfly, Eat Like A Hog," might make you disappear if you follow its advice too scrupulously. It is also bound to be the new diet rage this summer among the fashionable. Gossage contends that people can eat all they want and still maintain a constant weight by undergoing periodic surgical removal of relatively dispensable body organs and extremities.

In his stunningly narcotic first novel, "High on the Road," young Ernest Hammingway — a pen name — has created a restless, dissatisfied young hero who buys a pair of stilts and sets out across America in search of his roots. As he moves westward across the continent, hoping to reach San Francisco and have a ball, he discovers America at its most vicious. Unshaven louts in pickup trucks laugh at him for walking the highway on stilts. Sour capitalists corrupted by the system brush their Cadillacs dangerously close to him on turnpikes, forcing him to stumble onto soft shoulders where he becomes stuck for hundreds of pages high over the passing scene. Tremendous for deep hammock sleeping.

Integrity central issue for public in Watergate

Harris Survey

The American people now have become convinced that the central issue in the Watergate affair is the question of integrity of the federal government itself.

By 47-43 percent, the public has now ceased to look upon Watergate as being "mostly political" and sees it "as a very serious question involving the honesty of the White House." This is a marked change from last fall, when by 62-28 percent, a sizable majority chalked up the Watergate charges as mainly political rhetoric, or the kind of thing both sides engage in in political campaigns.

ON THE QUESTION of his handling of the Watergate affair, by 58-21 percent, a majority of the people believe Mr. Nixon "has withheld important information about it" and has "not been frank and honest" with the people on the matter. His personal rating on his handling of Watergate has now slipped to 70-15 percent negative, down sharply from the 57-31 percent negative standing recorded for him in May by the Harris Survey.

By the same token, before he was scheduled to testify, no more than 6 percent of the public felt that statements and leaks from former White House Counsel John Dean were "very truthful," another 27 percent felt he had been "only partly truthful," and 17 percent were convinced he was "hardly truthful." However 50 percent of the American public did not feel competent to pass judgment on this issue. Nevertheless, it appeared that Mr. Nixon's chief adversary was coming up short in his own credibility although public reaction to his testimony had yet to be measured.

The latest Harris Survey, conducted in person in 1,509 households between June 14th and 18th asked about the truthfulness of the testimony and other public statements by key figures in the Watergate case. Most of the public simply is not yet prepared to make definitive judgments about the veracity of the testimony and other statements. Obviously, as a jury, they are still withholding their final judgment. But skepticism among the people is high, indeed. The disposition of most people is to doubt most of what they had heard.

"How truthful do you think (READ NAME ON LIST) has been in what he (she) has said about the Watergate affair — very truthful, only partly truthful, or hardly truthful at all?"

TRUTHFULNESS OF KEY FIGURES IN WATERGATE AFFAIR
	Very Truthful	Partly Truthful	Hardly Truthful	Not Sure
President Nixon	16	30	23	31
James McCord	15	34	12	39
Martha Mitchell	15	20	21	44
Jeb Stuart Magruder	10	25	13	52
John Caulfield	8	24	9	59
Maurice Stans	7	22	14	57
John Dean III	6	27	17	50
E. Howard Hunt	5	26	13	56
John Mitchell	5	21	34	40
John Ehrlichman	4	25	20	51
H. R. "Bob" Haldeman	4	24	20	52
Charles Colson	3	18	9	69

MOST SUSPECT of all in the public's mind, in terms of telling the truth, quite clearly are three central high-level figures: former presidential chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman; former Domestic adviser John Ehrlichman; and former Attorney General John Mitchell. Together with former White House Special Counsel Charles Colson, who was largely unknown to the public up to now, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, and Mitchell were closer to Mr. Nixon than any other four men during his first administration.

The results indicate one of the real problems involved in the Watergate case: how to determine who is telling the truth and how any one individual can convince the American people he is telling the truth, even when he is called to testify under oath. Obviously, the aura of public skepticism about the veracity of the key figures is a serious handicap for these men to clear their names if innocent. By the same token, the public itself has now indicated that the central pivot on which Watergate will turn is the integrity of the White House over the affair.

No longer do people believe that Watergate is a matter of "politics" as was so long the case. Periodically, the Harris Survey has asked:

"Do you think the Watergate episode is a very serious question involving the honesty of the White House, or do you think it is mostly politics?"

SERIOUS QUESTION OR MOSTLY POLITICS?
	June '73	May '73	April '73	Oct. '72
Serious question involving White House integrity	47	40	36	28
Mostly politics	43	52	48	62
Not sure	10	8	16	12

IT IS APPARENT THAT THE MAN people are looking for most of all for answers is the President himself. And his rating on handling Watergate has now slipped to a low of 70-15 percent negative. No matter what the impact of the Dean testimony and that of Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, and the others to follow, only a convincing story from Mr. Nixon himself now will suffice, according to the American people themselves. Obviously, the crisis of public opinion over Watergate has now been reached.

Javits plans to seek fourth term

NEW YORK (AP) — Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits says he plans to seek a fourth term in 1974.

The 60-year-old lawmaker said, "I'm not yet a declared candidate, but I am planning to run for reelection."

Javits said that Watergate has damaged the Republican party but he did not think it would hurt his chances of winning.

Watergate dominates nation's most exclusive new publication

By JULES LOH
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's most exclusive news publication is put together every day by a staff of five for one key reader: the President of the United States.

Titled simply "News Summary," it arrives at his desk at 8 a.m. each morning in a blue loose-leaf binder. If the President is out of town it reaches him by wire.

The summary, meaty but dry, contains the essence of news and commentary from nearly 50 daily newspapers.

8a Winona Daily News
Winona, Minnesota
TUESDAY, JUNE 26, 1973

about as many magazines and journals plus the major news services and the three major television networks.

A sample:
"2 US News pages on 'Biggest WH Banquet Ever' w 7 photos on the 'day of high patriotism'—like a 'breath of fresh air for scandal-ridden DC' and 'a much-needed lift for a beleaguered RN.'"

The item, from a May 28 summary, condenses a U.S. News & World Report story on the White House (WH) banquet for returning war prisoners. Well-known names, including Richard Nixon, are in the form of initials.

The summary generally runs about 30 pages with the news digests are indeed thorough and generally objective if usually bone dry.

The same summary that contained the favorable U.S. News & World Report comment on the POW banquet, for example, also gave Time magazine's assessment that his "speech to the POWs 'carried RN's new theme' to illogical lengths...at an occasion of deep nat'l appreciation used by RN for a self-serving purpose."

Allin and his staff of four scan about 30 newspapers each day page by page and an additional 15 or more for major news and editorial comment.

They also videotape all TV news shows, and keep a running summary throughout the day of the output of the main wires of The Associated Press and United Press International.

By 11 p.m. the summary is ready for final typing by the White House secretarial pool. It is then copied, stapled together and distributed.

"The summary is written for the President and originally had a circulation of five," Allin said. "Gradually the list grew, and when it got to about 30 so many people saw it we began getting requests for more to be included. Now it goes to about 100 people."

Columns and interpretive stories that appear in the morning papers go into the following

Wisconsin Blue Cross to build office building

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Wisconsin Blue Cross announced plans to construct a 35-story office building costing between $20 million and $25 million.

Leo Suycott, Blue Cross president, said Surgical Care-Blue Shield and the Medical Society of Milwaukee County also planned to move into the structure.

day's summary.

The only major papers left out of the summary are The Washington Post and The New York Times. Instead both are slipped under the President's door each morning by his valet, Mariolo Sanchez.

"If we summarized those two, it would not only make the summary twice as long but redundant," Buchanan said.

In a "Weekend News Review," which Allin edits, he does include the opinion sections of The Post and The Times.

Among journals, the summaries focus not only on the news weeklies but on publications ranging from Foreign Affairs to Playboy and the Village Voice.

Daily digests, however, give prominence to television reports.

In the print media, special watch is kept for "a new trend of thought. People like Lisagor or Sides can set some trends and get things popping," Allin said, referring to Peter Lisagor of the Chicago Daily News and Hugh Sides of Time.

Delta scene of heavy fights

By GEORGE ESPER
SAIGON (AP) — Heavy fighting was reported today in the Mekong Delta on the northern edges of the U Minh Forest, where Viet Cong forces have threatened the provincial capital of V Thanh.

The Saigon command also said communist cease-fire violations increased 20 per cent over those of the previous several days. It claimed there were 66 infractions in the 24 hours ending at dawn.

Initial field reports from the Mekong Delta said 38 communist soldiers were killed Monday while government forces suffered at least four killed and 77 wounded in two battles.

Reports said that Viet Cong troops, shelled and then assaulted two government battalions as they were digging foxholes for a night bivouac 10 miles east of V Thanh and more than 100 miles south of Saigon.

The attack was repulsed, but the government forces suffered 60 men wounded, the reports said.

In another battle, 35 miles to the northwest, militiamen and armored cavalry units battled Viet Cong forces and claimed killing 38 men. Government losses were four killed and 17 wounded, the reports said.

The Saigon command reported that two South Vietnamese helicopters were fired at while on resupply missions but there were no casualties.

In Cambodia, U.S. B-52s continued raids during the night on Khmer Rouge positions and supply routes 25 miles south of Phnom Penh, the military command reported.

Meanwhile, Cambodia's official military spokesman said that if the U.S. Congress forces a halt to U.S. bombing in Cambodia, it would encourage the insurgents to step up attacks.

He was responding to the vote in the House of Representatives on Monday cutting off funds for the bombing. The measure was an antiwar amendment already approved by the Senate and attached to a supplemental appropriations bill. The legislation is a compromise worked out by a Senate-House committee. The Senate is expected to ratify it quickly and send it to President Nixon, who will have 10 days to sign or veto it.

Possibility of food rationing seen as unlikely

By RANDY SCHMID
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz has predicted shortages of meat and poultry in the United States; but other economic officials say the possibility of food rationing is "extremely unlikely."

Butz told the Senate Banking Committee Monday that President Nixon needs standby authority to reduce agriculture exports to solve the shortage problem.

He said the squeeze between high feed prices and the price freeze is hurting poultry raisers, forcing hog producers to sell off breeding stock, and causing cattlemen to keep beef off the market.

Meanwhile, the President's Council of Economic Advisers said it was concerned about shortages, but that rationing within the next year is unlikely. The council said the freeze on some food, including broiler chickens, may have to be eased.

Butz said that the granting of the export control authority would prompt producers to expand since they would have government assurance that their feed would be sufficient and at lower prices in the future.

Economic council chairman Herbert Stein said his group has read "lots of horror stories" about producers killing chickens because they are too expensive to raise. He said the council also was concerned about shortages of eggs, tomatoes and other products.

Turning to gasoline prices, Stein said some 1,106 service stations have had to roll back prices as a result of consumer complaints that the stations were violating the freeze.

The overcharges averaged two cents a gallon at 741 independent and 365 company-owned stations, the council said.

Stein said the administration still hopes to have an official announcement on Phase 4 controls by mid-July.

Farmers continue to report fuel shortages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reports of fuel shortages continue to drift into the Agriculture Department from farmers, including accusations that some wildcat dealers are asking bootleg prices.

One official, who asked not to be identified, said there have been reports of large tank trucks "driving the back roads looking for the highest bidders" to buy fuel.

The official said a few farmers who have reported such incidents say they might need the bootleggers, even at exorbitant prices, if the fuel crunch worsens.

Wisconsin employees union votes to up dues, fringe benefits

EAGLE RIVER, Wis. (AP) — Members of the state employees union voted Sunday for a dues increase and improved fringe benefits.

Nearly 140 delegates to the 10,500-member union's convention also adopted a censure of President Nixon's economic control plan and any form of government wage control.

Delegates voted to increase dues to $3.50 a month from $2.55, and in favor of demanding increased health and life insurance benefits.

Lawrence Grenier of Menomonie Falls was re-elected union president. Allen Weber of the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater was named vice president.

Consumers panel discusses area problems at meet

WHITEHALL, Wis. (Special) — Area problems were discussed by members of the Regional Consumers Council at its recent meeting.

The council, which includes Trempealeau, Jackson, La Crosse, Monroe, Buffalo and Vernon counties, is sponsored by Western Dairyland Economic Council, Inc., headquartered at Whitehall.

Erich Milberg, a member of the State Commission on Banking, told the group local issues must be developed into bills, then presented for passage in legislature. The council's role is to propose and advocate the rules, then inform the general public of the results, he said.

The council's concerns for further action include insurance misrepresentation, consumer education, date-labeling on groceries, high cost of prescription drugs and medical care for the area.

Brothers, woman told to retain own attorneys

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (Special) — Two men and a woman charged with theft and trespassing here were told Monday they would have to retain their own attorneys to represent them at an Aug. 23 trial.

Willard Green, 23, and his brother, Howard, 20, both of Blair, Wis., and Miss Carrie Arneson, 18, Whitehall, Wis., are charged with the theft of gasoline and trespassing at the Donald Simonson home near Hixton, Wis. They were arrested early Friday by Jackson County sheriff's officers.

Jackson County Court Judge Louis I. Dreckthall Monday denied their requests for court-appointed attorneys and set trial for 9 a.m. Aug. 23.

The two men are free on $200 bond each and Miss Arneson is free on $100 bond.

In other court action Monday, Arlen Peterson, Black River Falls, pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving after revocation of his drivers license. Trial will be held in about a month.

Leslie Hulett, Taylor, Wis., was fined $19 after pleading guilty to doing plumbing work beyond the limits of his plumbing license.

The Rye Bluff Corporation, Black River Falls, pleaded guilty to cutting timber in a restricted area and was fined $25.

Watergate hearings

can only speak what I know to be the facts, and that's what I'm providing this committee.

Today's committee session was one of interrogation. On Monday, Dean provided a recitation, uninterrupted by questioning, of his massive written account of Watergate.

In his account to the Senate panel, Dean set the stage by outlining a pre-campaign atmosphere of a White House staff which worried constantly about anti-Nixon demonstrators, hired spies to tail political opponents and contemplated plans to break the law in search of information.

As his story unfolded, he implicated in the cover-up the President, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, special presidential counsel Richard A. Moore, former special presidential counsel Charles W. Colson, ex-acting Federal Bureau of Investigation Director L. Patrick Gray III and a host of aides and assistants.

As pieces of Dean's story leaked out last week, the White House said it would not respond until he testified in public and under oath. On Monday, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon, in San Clemente, Calif., was being kept informed of Dean's testimony but would have no comment on it this week.

Dean's account is in blatant conflict with earlier statements by the President on a number of crucial points.

As Dean recited events, the first meeting at which he discussed the cover-up with the President was Sept. 15, 1972, when Nixon said he was pleased the federal indictments in the Watergate case stopped no higher than former campaign chief counsel G. Gordon Liddy.

"I told him all that I had been able to do was to contain the case and assist in keeping it out of the White House," Dean said. "I also had expressed to him my concern that I was not confident that the cover-up could be maintained indefinitely."

Dean said various administration and campaign officials proceeded from that point to scuttle a House committee probe headed by Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex.—that "just might stumble into something that would start unraveling the cover-up."

That accomplished, Dean said he helped accused political saboteur Donald Segretti prepare a story intended to keep Watergate investigators from learning the scope of high-level backing of Segretti's "dirty trick" operation.

Dean said he enlisted the help of Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen and that prosecutor Earl J. Silbert tried to gloss over the matter, but that an independent-minded grand juror almost thwarted their efforts by asking Segretti who his backers were.

Segretti named presidential appointments secretary Dwight R. Chapin, Haldeman aide Gordon Strachan and Herbert W. Kalmbach, then Nixon's personal attorney. But, Dean said, when FBI agents "came to interview Chapin and Strachan, they contained themselves in their questioning" and the lid remained in place.

After the election, consideration was given to putting out the facts "to get rid of the Watergate," Dean said. But when he told Haldeman that could result in indictments against Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Dean, Strachan and campaign deputy Jeb Stuart Magruder, "Haldeman said it doesn't seem to be a very viable option."

So the cover-up continued through the end of 1972 and into the new year "on the general theory that no one would be arrested for what they didn't say," Dean recounted.

Then, as the trial of the original Watergate Seven drew near, pressures grew for more hush-money payments to the defendants. One of them, former White House consultant E. Howard Hunt threatened to start talking if he didn't get money and a promise of executive clemency.

Dean said that in conversations he had with the President several weeks later—in March and April—Nixon "referred to the fact that Hunt had been promised executive clemency," that Nixon had discussed this with Ehrlichman and Colson and was annoyed that Colson had raised the issue in Dean's presence.

According to Dean's account, Nixon asked how much it would cost to meet the demands.

"I told him that I could only make an estimate that it might be as high as $1 million or more," Dean said. "He told me that that was no problem, and he also looked over at Haldeman and repeated the same statement."

On Feb. 10, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Moore and Dean had met in La Costa, Calif., for a series of intensive discussions "on perpetuating the Watergate tactics or the cover-up by a counteroffensive against the forthcoming Senate hearings."

A concerted effort was launched to defeat the committee's search for truth but virtually every tactic failed, Dean said.

On Feb. 27, Dean had his second substantive meeting with the President regarding the Watergate.

Dean said a series of meetings followed between the two that continued for three weeks in March, devoted largely to problems that developed as the Senate Judiciary Committee made its confirmation hearings on Gray's nomination to be FBI director a forum to examine the administration's Watergate investigation.

"It was during the afternoon of March 20 that I talked again with Dick Moore about this entire cover-up matter," Dean recalled. There were new and more threatening demands for support money, and "I told Moore that I had about reached the end of the line and was now in a position to deal with the President to end the cover-up."

The next day, Dean said, he went to see Nixon and "began by telling the President that there was a cancer growing on the presidency and that if the cancer was not removed that the President himself would be killed by it."

Dean said he then outlined the whole affair as he knew it, explained the various crimes involved, including obstruction of justice and perjury, expressed the fear that blackmail of the White House would continue and that the silence could not be maintained forever.

"After I finished," Dean said, "I realized that I had not really made the President understand because, after he asked a few questions, he suggested that it would be an excellent idea if I gave some sort of briefing to the Cabinet and that he was very impressed with my knowledge of the circumstances but he did not seem particularly concerned with their implications."

County tax equalization board to meet

The Winona County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday as the county board of tax equalization in a session that is expected to be in sharp contrast to last year's stormy meeting.

The board meets once yearly to equalize real estate tax valuations and County Assessor David V. Sauer said this year's session should be peaceful.

AT LAST YEAR'S session, about 50 angry taxpayers appeared to protest the 1972 upward revaluation of most county real estate.

There was no revaluation this year, and Sauer expects the meeting to be short and quiet, although he said he will ask the board to recess for a few weeks to allow further study of the state's new tax laws.

Sauer will travel to Buffalo, Minn., Wednesday for a state meeting designed to explain the nuances of the new tax laws to assessors from throughout the state.

Following that meeting, Sauer said, some changes will have to be made to make the assessments, which will appear on 1974 tax bills, comply with laws created by the recently adjourned 1973 Legislature.

Board of review meetings in all political subdivisions in the county are now complete, Sauer said. Those meetings, too, were a peaceful contrast to last year's long and noisy sessions.

THE WINONA City board of Review met June 14 and heard only seven complaints, Sauer pointed out, compared to the board's 1972 sessions that lasted a week and included about 50 complaints a day.

The county session Monday will be in the commissioners' room of the temporary courthouse at West 3rd and Johnson streets. Board members then, Sauer noted, can act only to equalize political subdivisions and cannot change individual valuations.

Boy Scouts to attend jamboree at Idaho park

LA CROSSE, Wis. — Boy Scout Troop 6241, sponsored by the Gateway Area Council, will attend the Jamboree West at Farragut State Park Idaho the first week in August.

The 37 Scouts, with Don Schroeder, Caledonia, Minn., as Scoutmaster, and John Rusin, La Crescent, Minn., and Dr. O. Mark Schneider, Blair, Wis., will leave July 27 and return Aug. 15.

En route the Scouts will tour Air Force bases and Glacier, Yellowstone and Mount Rushmore National Parks.

Has Brezhnev-Nixon meeting opened era?

By BARRY SCHWEID
WASHINGTON (AP) — The windup communique of President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev bolsters the theory that the age of summits has just begun.

Already we know that Nixon will make a second visit to Moscow. Henry A. Kissinger, his chief foreign policy adviser, has suggested it will be 12 to 14 months. This would call for a second visit to the United States by Brezhnev, provided the warming relationship between the two countries does not suddenly chill.

The general secretary of the Soviet Communist party has virtually invited himself back by declaring publicly he would like another chance to see more of the United States and the American people.

In their last three hours together in San Clemente, Calif., Nixon and Brezhnev laid the groundwork for the third summit. It could be timed to climax a new agreement to limit and reduce nuclear offensive weapons. This, of course, will depend largely on the kind of progress that is made at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) in Geneva.

The communique, meanwhile, hinted at an eventual all-European summit.

Nixon and Brezhnev promised to do what they can to contribute to a successful European security conference. The foreign ministers of 32 European nations plus the United States and Canada convene in Helsinki beginning July 3.

The communique said both

Washington and Moscow "proceed from the assumption that progress in the work of the conference will produce possibilities for completing it at the highest level."

The major goal is a general easing of Cold War frictions. Secretary of State William P. Rogers will attend the first week or 10 days of sessions for the United States. The conference may last for months.

Kissinger said it is not up to Nixon and Brezhnev to settle whether there should be a grand East-West summit in Europe to follow up the Helsinki talks. But the communique implies that the two leaders are pushing in that direction.

In his U.S. radio-television address Sunday, Brezhnev invited all the nations of the world to join in the trend toward "peaceful cooperation" set by him and Nixon.

Guard buses for migrants not needed

MOORHEAD, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota National Guard buses provided for migrant workers to attend a weekend conference at Moorhead were not required said Col. Clifton G. Johnson.

Johnson said buses were at designated pickup points in East Grand Forks and Hollandale Sunday to take the workers to a conference in Moorhead, but the workers didn't show up at either location.

Col. James G. Sieben, Camp Ripley, said the drivers went out of their way to learn what had happened to their scheduled passengers.

"It was a beautiful day and the migrants are here for six weeks and they come up, not to go to meetings, but to work. If they have a good day, they have to take advantage of it," said Francisco Arevalo, board chairman of Migrants in Action, St. Paul.

The area director for the Minnesota Migrant Council, Ramon Sanchez, said the episode illustrates the apathy which must be overcome to solve problems faced by migrant workers.

Some 80 persons attended the meeting which centered on problems of migrant workers.

Reactions to TV programs similar

Television preferences of Winona viewers conform closely with the national consensus, according to data compiled in Winona by monitors for the American Council for Better Broadcasts' Look-Listen Poll.

Miss Clarissa Sunde, 170 E. Howard St., reported that 29 Winona monitors submitted 232 evaluations on 108 television programs.

IN THE AREA of drama, "All in the Family" received the most ratings in Winona as it did among the 4,442 monitors from throughout the nation who participated in the poll.

The Lawrence Welk program, Miss Sunde reported, received the top rating among musical programs here as it did in the national poll results.

Winona viewers gave the "Julie Andrews Show" the top spot among variety programs.

Miss Sunde explained that each monitor was asked to evaluate programs on the basis of "excellent," "good," "fair" and "poor."

Results of the national poll are listed in a 40-page report of the Better Broadcasts Council.

A NUMBER of comments of Winona monitors are included in the national report, Miss Sunde says.

She said that in Winona the three national networks were rated about equally in news broadcasts.

Among the Winona comments included in the national report were:

All in the Family — "It hits so many people because they see themselves in it."

Doris Day Show — "Poor. Poor plot. No violence, no smut but nothing worthwhile."

M*A*S*H — "It has serious intent—that war is not fun. I enjoy this. My children watch the program and I do not mind. They miss the sexual nature of jokes."

Julie Andrews — "She sings songs just the way they were written—a good family show with good talent and good directing."

Lawrence Welk — "Lawrence Welk is a very pleasant host."

The Archies — "Poor. Waste of time. Too noisy!"

Senior and junior lifesaving classes are held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday until enrollees fulfill requirements.

Michigan girl kidnaped from Montana camp

THREE FORKS, Mont. (AP) — The search for a 7-year-old Michigan girl who was apparently kidnaped from her tent early Monday morning will continue today near this southern Montana town.

Police will use boats to widen the search for little Susie Jaeger, whose teddy bear and the stuffed reindeer she always took to bed were found outside a gaping hole in the tent where she slept with her sister and two brothers.

Authorities today plan to use boats to search the banks and pole the bottoms of the three rivers that join to make the Missouri at Three Forks — the Madison, Jefferson and Gallatin.

The campground at the Missouri Headwaters State Monument was the site of a yet-unresolved 1968 slaying of a Bozeman, Mont., Boy Scout. Michael Raney, 12, was slain as he slept beside companions at a Scout camporee. The boy was stabbed through a hole cut into the side of his tent. The Jaeger tent was pitched only 25 feet from the spot of the Raney tent in 1968.

FBI agents were scheduled to enter the case officially today. Agents aided in the questioning of the handful of vacationers who apparently slept Monday morning when the small girl was taken from the campground.

Permit seen for construction of Knife Lake dam

MORA, Minn. (AP) — A hydrologist for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Daniel Retka, said it is expected a permit will be issued Tuesday to clear the way for construction of a dam on Knife Lake.

The action comes following a decision by the Minnesota Historical Society to drop its objection to construction of the dam. The society said Monday it would drop its objection if given 60 days to study nearby archaeological sites before the dam is built.

The dam would raise the level of the lake 18 inches and cover some archaeological sites.

Society director Russell W. Fridley said the society decided to drop the objection after a report from its chief archaeologist.

In a related development a Minneapolis attorney, G. Robert Johnson, filed an appeal against the decision of the Kanabec County Board to go ahead with the dam. Johnson, who filed the appeal with the county auditor at Mora, said he was acting for a number of the county's residents.

SERENADE . . . Frank Bush, a spinal patient at Fairview Hospital, Minneapolis, serenades his girl friend, Roxanne Thufin. During seven months in traction, he gained seven inches in height. (AP Photofax)

Spine straightened

Treatment painful, but Mill City man happy

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Gaining seven inches in height and a fiancée has made months of painful treatment in a Minneapolis hospital worthwhile for a young man from Georgia.

Frank Bush, 17, was 5-foot-1 when he entered Fairview Hospital. Now he's 5-foot-8, and engaged.

"I looked like the hunchback of Notre Dame," Bush says in recalling his appearance when he entered the hospital. "Not many girls looked at me and said, 'Aaaaah!'"

Using surgery and traction, doctors straightened out the hump and made Bush stand erect.

Since last Dec. 17, the slender young spinal patient has undergone what many might consider torture. He has lain in traction 24 hours a day in a "halo" device. A circular steel band was secured to his skull by two bolts, and a steel pin was drilled through each of his knees. An overhead line from the head to the knees created the traction, "stretching" the spine and increasing his height.

Bush's treatment included three surgical operations for spinal fusions. He describes his disease, scoliosis, as one of the worst diseases a person can have.

"It's frustrating, humiliating, and crushes everything inside you — your lungs, your heart and stomach," he says.

Still, he says, "Life is good." "We should all try to enjoy it. And while I've had troubles, I've always run across people who are worse off and need cheering."

Bush has been writing songs in the hospital and his electric guitar is as much a part of his gear as his cane and other hospital paraphernalia. He says he's been playing the guitar since he was 9.

"I had trouble doing what the other kids did — baseball and all that," he explains. "So I concentrated on music. It worked pretty well. The girls would even make a fuss over me. That I liked."

Young Bush became engaged to one of the nurses aides — blue-eyed, blond Roxanne Thufin.

Nurses and other patients on the floor say even more remarkable than the treatment has been Bush's ability to cheer others with his joking manner. He entertains the others, too, by playing his guitar daily.

"He's an inspiration to the rest of us," said one patient undergoing similar treatment. "He gives us hope and the courage to go through with it."

Centerfolds are unstapling marriage

DEAR ABBY: Since the beginning of our marriage four years ago, I told my husband I wouldn't tolerate "Playboy" or any other such magazine in our home, and if he wanted to read that kind of stuff he would have to leave it at his office.

We moved recently and I found a stack of these glib magazines in the attic. My husband laughed about it and said he read them when I was asleep or out.

Now he continues buying these magazines which he keeps in his drawer. I told him to remove them or I would throw them out. Well, he didn't, and I did. Now he tells me I owe him $8 for his destroyed magazines, and he refuses to give me his paycheck until I pay him the $8.

A m. I wrong, or is he? He knew my feelings, and he was warned. He says those magazines belonged to him and I had no right to destroy them.

If you want to publish this, go ahead. There must be others with this problem.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

HATES FILTH

DEAR HATES: You are wrong. Your husband has a right to read what he wishes, and to keep whatever he wants in his drawer. And if you don't quit invading his privacy and destroying his property, it could cost you more than $8.

DEAR ABBY: Both my husband and I are nearly 30 years old. We've been married for six beautiful years, and we have not had any children because we just plain do not want any. We have given the matter a great deal of serious consideration and have concluded that having children is not all it's cracked up to be. Maybe we're wrong, but that is the way we feel about it.

The problem: Both his mother and mine have been hounding us for some time now with: "When are you going to make me a grandmother?" The answer, of course, is: "Never!" But how do you tell two women who have done little else in their lives but produce children without inviting a fight?

We have been told that we are "selfish," that it's unnatural to want no children, and maybe we should see a psychiatrist. I'm sure you get the picture.

So how do you tell two would-be grandmothers that whether we want children or not is strictly our own business, and even though it's a disappointment to them, we would rather not discuss it?

DEAR CHILDLESS: You seem sufficiently articulate to get the message across. When the subject comes up, simply say that you prefer not to discuss it. And don't try to defend your position or you will be in for an endless debate.

DEAR ABBY: I know I shouldn't think about myself so much, but I feel so big and ugly and dumb. In other words, I just don't have any confidence in myself.

I'm 5 foot 8 and weigh 140. I have mousy brown hair cut in a shag, which I hate on me. But I also hated my hair when it was long. I'm 24 and married. Everything I buy I want to return as soon as I get it home. Everything I cook I feel like throwing out, and I never feel like I look right in anything I put on.

All this lack of confidence in myself is driving me nuts. I hate for people to look me in the face because I think they're looking at my nose. I know I have shoulders like a football player, but I'm not any bigger than my sister, and she always looks nice.

Please help me, Abby. I'm so miserable.

ONE BIG MESS

DEAR ONE: You can't be nearly as big a "mess" as you think you are. At least one man must have thought you were pretty special or he wouldn't have married you.

What you need is a better self-image. Start with getting your psychological house in order. Your doctor can recommend a counselor, (and a diet if you feel "fat"), and remember, the longest march in the world started with a step—so get going.

Problems You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

THE LOCKHORNS

Money Does Matter . . .

By MIKE SCHRANTZ

The law permits one to write his own will.

In about one-third of the states he can write it with his own hand, date and sign it, and put it away among his valuable papers and not let anyone know anything about it.

In all states he can hand-write or type his own will, sign and date it, have it witnessed, and then put it away.

It will be a valid will as to all of his property if it meets all the legal requirements of the state in which he is a resident, and also of the state or states in which he owns real property. But, for a person, unless he himself is a lawyer, to write his own will—that is the ultimate in taking chances. It's like playing Russian Roulette in taking medicine from any of a dozen unlabeled bottles. Of all the legal documents a man signs during his lifetime, the one that most of all should be drawn by a competent and experienced lawyer is his will! Our hearty congratulations to charge.

Mr. & Mrs. Gary Nissanka on their recent relocation, remodeling and grand opening of the Piccadilly gift shop. We extend our best wishes for continued success in their endeavors! You DO need a will, and you DO need a good lawyer to help you make it. And, it could be that we here at the First National Bank of Winona could help you in your planning. We've had much experience in trust matters, handling estates, and serving as executors. Our advice and guidance: all without charge.

50th annual reunion held

ROLLINGSTONE, Minn.—Descendants of Christ Denzer, who homesteaded near Rollingstone in 1856, met for their 50th annual reunion Sunday at Farmer's Community Park, Lewis-ton.

Five generations of the family were listed on the family tree displayed at the reunion.

Paul Reps Sr., Fremont, Minn., was the oldest member present, and Michael Denzer, three-week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Denzer Jr., Rollingstone, was the youngest of 159 members attending.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Denzer, Milwaukee, were the most recently married couple and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Harris, Titusville, Fla., traveled the greatest distance.

Kellogg reunion

KELLOGG, Minn. (Special)—The second annual Wohlwend-Baker family reunion was held Saturday and Sunday at the Watopa Sportsman's Club. An outdoor Mass was held Sunday morning. Family members attended from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Oregon and Illinois. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brostrom, Lake City; Mr. and Mrs. John Eversman and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Baker, Kellogg, hosted the event attended by 130 family members.

Your horoscope — Jeane Dixon

For WEDNESDAY, June 27

Your birthday today: Marks a sustained forward march through experimental phases into a successful earning pattern. The year's emphasis is on material concerns. Relationships tend to inspirational contacts, free from affection. Today's natives have courage, aren't always very tactful.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Skip the bickering, take everyone into your confidence, get busy to fix up your household.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Give credit where credit is due, particularly where you have been helped. It's a good day for additions to personal possessions.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You thrive in competition, have no hesitation in taking on a debate. Investigate the prospects for changes in work conditions.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Set a high value on anything you offer for sale. Communication, correspondence promise results beyond expectations — make an effort!

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Promotion is normal today. If you're not improving, you're either on a divergent track or missing some point.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Self-improvement is the goal of the moment. Push pending projects toward early completion.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Now your personality counts strongly. Encouraging others' efforts should be continued in proportion to your own progress.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's a great day for sorting out what is yours and what is not, making the best use of all opportunities for reasonable exchanges.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your treatment of others brings results in kind on this otherwise undistinguished day. Be diligent.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Benefits are indicated if you will stay in place to receive them. Present a smooth, graceful side of your personality.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The soft sell does it. Instead of pressing others to adopt your ideas, simply apply them and attract interest by your good results.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Resolve to hold to thrifty budget decisions despite your bright mood and temptations to spend.

CREAMY SPINACH

An easy way to "saute" spinach.

- 1 package (20 ounces) trimmed and washed fresh spinach
- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 container (8 ounces) commercial sour cream
- White pepper to taste

Break off and discard any tough stems at bottom of spinach leaves; rinse leaves in cold water. Cook rapidly, covered, with the boiling water and salt just until wilted; drain well; with a kitchen scissors cut coarsely. Mix with sour cream and pepper; reheat gently. Makes 6 servings.

ZUCCHINI PICKLE

- 1 pound zucchini
- 1/2 pound (3 small) onions
- 2 tablespoons salt
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon celery seed
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon mustard seed
- 1 cup cider vinegar

Scrub zucchini in cold water, cut thin slice from each end but do not pare; slice thin. Slice onions; separate into rings. In a medium saucepan cover zucchini and onion with cold water and add salt; let stand 1 hour. Bring to a boil and boil 3 minutes. Turn into a jar. Cover tightly and refrigerate at least overnight, to allow flavors to develop, before serving. Makes about 1 1/2 pints.

ORANGE BEETS

- Good color and flavor.
- 1 can (1 pound) sliced beets
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup orange juice
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 teaspoon orange rind
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Drain beets, reserving 1/2 cup of the beet liquid. In a medium saucepan stir together the cornstarch and salt; gradually stir in orange juice then 1/2 cup beet liquid, keeping smooth. Add butter and orange rind; cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear. Add beets and lemon juice; reheat. Makes 4 servings.

The Caspian Sea, 143,550 square miles, is actually a lake on the Asia-Europe continent.

Mr. and Mrs. David A. Sather

Minneapolis is home for newlywed couple

LA CRESCENT, Minn.—Miss Cynthia Peterson and David Allen Sather pledged their marriage vows in a June 16 ceremony at Crucifixion Catholic Church, La Crescent.

Officiating at the ceremony were the Rev. Donald Winkels and the Rev. Dale Seffrood.

NUPTIAL MUSIC was provided by Miss Diane McNally, Miss Marilyn Frauenkron, Mrs. Ronald Evenson, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack DuRocher.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Peterson, Houston, and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Sather, Houston.

The bride chose a floor length gown of polyester crepe satin trimmed in chantilly lace. Pearl centered flowers accented the ruffled cuffs and empire waist. She wore a cathedral length mantilla of nylon illusion and carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses, baby's-breath and lilies-of-the-valley.

MISS CORINNE Peterson, Houston, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Sharon Peterson, Mrs. Robert Ledebuhr and Miss Sandra Schild. They were wearing styled gowns of pink, orchid, yellow and green respectively. Each carried a candle centered wreath of pink and yellow roses, baby's-breath and stephanotis.

Richard Sather, Houston, was best man and groomsmen were Bill Nikolai, Ray Mark and Joel Thompson. Ushers were Mr. and Mrs. Greg Lemke and Mr. and Mrs. Arden Hargrove. Following a reception at the Commodore Supper Club, the newlyweds departed on a honeymoon through Canada and are home at Minneapolis.

BOTH ARE graduates of Houston High School. The bride is employed as dental assistant and the bridegroom, a U.S. Air Force veteran, is attending the University of Minnesota School of Dentistry.

Mrs. Thomas J. Dunlavy

Dare Lamberton weds Thomas J. Dunlavy

PERU, Ind. — Miss Dare Lamberton and Thomas Joseph Dunlavy were united in marriage in afternoon ceremonies Saturday at the Church of the Holy Trinity, Peru.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry McClelland Lamberton, Sarasota, Fla., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Francis Dunlavy, Lowell, Mass.

The Rev. Louis Payne officiated at the ceremony. Mrs. Edgar White was organist.

PRESENTED in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in the wedding gown worn by her mother and aunt, Mrs. William F. White, Winona. It featured white chantilly lace, fitted bodice and a sheer yoke outlined with scalloped lace applique and a long chapel train and veil. She carried an arrangement of roses and baby's-breath, and gardenias.

Miss Elizabeth Lamberton, Sarasota, was her sister's maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Sara Lamberton, sister of the bride; Miss Joanne Dunlavy and Miss Barbara Dunlavy, sisters of the bride.

The groom, the bride was attired in a moss green organza gown styled on empire lines with bateau neckline, caplet collar adorned with venise lace and an A-line full-length skirt. The bridesmaids wore yellow gowns styled identically to that of the maid of honor. All wore matching picture hats.

PAUL BRASSARD, Boston, Mass., was best man and usherers were Tom Lyons, Charles A. Cole and Angus L. White, Winona.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mrs. A. H. Cole, Peru, grandmother of the bride.

The newlyweds are honeymooning in Ireland, England and Scotland and will later establish a home in Boston. The bride was graduated from Margaret Hall, Versailles, Ky., and received a degree cum laude from Wheaton College, Norton, Mass. Her husband received a B.S. and M.B.A. from Suffolk College, Boston, and is currently in the executive training program at the Ritz Carleton Hotel, Boston.

Moments with Mary

We are told that more than 1,000 persons were on hand to view the first production of the Winona Community Theatre, "Teahouse of the August Moon," which closed last week. It's continued support of the theater that will hopefully insure a community theater for years to come. Hundreds of season tickets were sold this year and, of course, tickets for the two remaining shows are available at the box office. The first of three children's shows will open Wednesday evening on the newly constructed outdoor stage behind St. Anne Hospice. The whole concept is a first this season and the theater board is the first group to hope that it is successful. "Jack and the Beanstalk" is the first production and hundreds of children are expected to be on hand.

Looking for something for your children to do on long summer days? Why not encourage them to begin constructing an entry for the upcoming kiddie parade during the annual Steamboat Days celebration?

With the arrival of warm weather and the summer season, car rides and vacations with children are more frequent. At travel time activities are best that require easily handled and packaged materials. Below are several games and ideas suited to the special needs of travel with children. Maybe you will find them advantageous during your vacation days.

• Always pack a pad of paper, crayons, pencil, possibly even blunt scissors, glue or cellophane tape.

• A writing board from a stationery store is inexpensive and will slip under the front seat for storage.

• A deck of cards and special travel-size games such as pegg chess and peg checkers will be welcome.

• A soft ball, jump rope or other easily packed equipment for active play is often welcome when stopping for a while during the day.

• SUBTRACTION: Count the cars you meet, but subtract one for every car you pass or are passed by.

• TRAVEL I SPY: One player is chosen to name something that all must watch for: a white horse or a red barn or a hitchhiker. The first one to see the object calls, "I spy," and then may choose the next object. If he chooses "white horse," for example, and none is seen for some time, another player may call, "Time," and he must choose another object.

• THREE WORDS: Players take turns. Each chooses any three words he can think of and calls upon another player to make a sentence of them. Thus, "mountains, box and rope" may be used to say, "I carried a box lunch with a rope, and ate it when I reached the mountains."

• ANIMAL FARM: Each player collects animals for his farm. The first to see a tiger on a sign, for example, or a sheep in a pasture, has that animal in his farm. At the end of a specified time the one with the most animals wins. Variation: Each player draws and carries his animals on paper as he sees them. Printed names may be added, as in a zoo.

Mr. and Mrs. James Christie

Newlyweds to reside in New Ulm, Germany

ALTURA, Minn. — The Jehovah Lutheran Church was the setting for the June 9 marriage of Miss Renee Gatzlaff daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gatzlaff, Altura, and James Christie, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Christie, Altura, Minn.

The Rev. Harold Strum officiated at the exchange. Elizabeth Winkler was organist and Margie Cox soloist.

PRESENTED in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in an empire styled gown of candlelight polyester sheer over taffeta. The gown featured a high mandarin collar and long bishop sleeves trimmed with braided, bridal lace. A head-dress of matching lace secured her long full bridal veil of silk illusion and she carried a bouquet of white roses and blue daisies.

Miss LuAnn Gatzlaff, Altura, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Pauline Raasch, Lydia Tibbs and Laurie Gatzlaff. They wore matching gowns of candy flocked fabric in blue, lavender yellow and pink respectively. Each wore ribbons and daisies in her hair and carried baskets of daisies.

STEVE EDWARDS, Utica, was best man and groomsmen were Gary Sanders, Jay Gatzlaff and Brad Gatzlaff. Dean Gatzlaff ushered.

Following a reception at the Park Plaza the couple honeymooned in Northern Minnesota and will establish a home in New Ulm, Germany, where the bridegroom is serving with the U.S. Army.

The bride attended Dr. Martin Luther College, New Ulm, Minn. Her husband was graduated from St. Charles High School.

Volunteers finish laying of sod at Independence H.S.

INDEPENDENCE, Wis. (Special) — About 100 volunteers finished laying sod on the athletic field of Independence High School here Saturday afternoon.

Area businessmen, working men, alumni, teachers, students and many other community members donated their time or machinery to complete the project which was begun two weeks ago.

Prior to the arrival of men from their regular jobs, women unloaded the sod and laid it in place. After the men arrived, the women prepared lunch and refreshments for the working crews.

Consumer index in Milwaukee up by 2.4 percent

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The consumer price index for the Milwaukee area rose 2.4 per cent in the last quarter, the steepest three-month climb since 1951, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics said Thursday.

The index for May was calculated at 130, about 5.9 per cent greater than May a year ago.

It is the kind of inflation against which Nixon administration price-ceiling policies are aimed.

The Milwaukee Metropolitan Association of Commerce, however, interpreted the May economic growth trend as "particularly encouraging."

"On a cumulative basis, the first five months of 1973 compared very favorably with the same period in 1972," the association said.

The price index statistics were interpreted elsewhere as meaning that typical consumer items costing $100 a year previously would have cost $105 in May, and that items costing $130 in May would have cost only $100 in 1967.

The bureau said grocery prices represent 50 per cent of the quarterly increased index in Milwaukee, Ozauska, Washington and Waukesha counties.

WORRIED MENTOR ... Minnesota Twins manager Frank Quilici pondered his thoughts during Monday's game with the Chicago White Sox and saw his club nipped 3-2. The home-standing Sox shut off a Twins rally in the ninth inning to pick up the win. (AP Photofax)

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox made three first-inning runs stand up for a 3-2 victory Monday night over the Minnesota Twins, who scored both their runs in the ninth and thought they were robbed.

Designated hitter Carlos May's two-run double clutched the Sox' opening round, and Stan Bahnsen scattered 10 hits until being replaced in the 8th to boost his record to 10-7.

Terry Forster, sidelined since

June 10 with a rib injury, replaced Bahnsen after Tony Oliva had singled.

Forster walked Bob Darwin, then struck out Harmon Killebrew and pinch-hitter Joe Lis and got pinch-hitter Danny Walton to fly out.

But in the ninth, trouble came, and it took little Cy Acosta to bail out Forster and get credit for his fifth save.

"That Acosta is something else again," said Sox Manager Chuck Tanner. "I took Bahnsen out because he had pitched hard and was starting to force his pitches. I knew I had Forster and Acosta in the bullpen

... I wasn't too worried."

Forster, however, walked George Mitterwald, who went to second on Larry Hisle's single. Then Rod Carew walked and Jerry Torrell did the same as Forster forced in Mitterwald.

In came Acosta.

Oliva fouled three times and finally struck out. Darwin walked, forcing home Hisle and cutting the Sox lead to 3-2.

Acosta fanned Dan Monzon and then got Lis to fly out to end the game.

The key pitch was the third strike on Oliva.

"I think Oliva was looking for a slider and I threw him a fast ball," said Acosta.

Oliva put up an argument on the call with plate umpire John Flaherty.

And after the game, Twin Manager Frank Quilici said, "It was a bleep call ... It was inside and nearly got Tony."

"You'll never know if that pitch cost us the game—you can't bring it back."

"It was way inside," said Oliva. "You might get a call like that on a first pitch, but never on a third strike."

Bert Blyleven went the distance and absorbed his 8th loss against nine decisions. He struck out 10, including Bill Melton four times. Melton has yet to get a hit in 10 trips since returning to the lineup after hurting his leg on June 18. Wilbur Wood, who has lost his last four starts, will be going for victory No. 15 for the fifth time Tuesday night as he faces the Twins' Joe Decker (1-2). Wood, 14-9, has lost six of his last seven appearances.

Birds nip Brewers in 12 innings, 4-3

By MIKE O'BRIEN
MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers cooled off one of baseball's hottest hitters a bit Monday night, so Paul Blair helped beat them instead with speed and defense.

Blair, who had been hitting .430 since May 29, was held to one harmless hit in four times at bat and was picked off first in the third inning.

But he robbed George Scott of a home run with a leaping catch in the fifth. Then, in the 12th, he evaded Pedro Garcia's tag at second to avert a possible inning ending double play. Al Bumbry crossed the plate with the winning run on the play as the Baltimore Orioles sapped Milwaukee's three-game winning streak 4-3.

Since the American League East leading New York Yankees also lost, the runnerup Brewers remained only two games out and the third place Orioles surged to within three games of the top.

Bumbry, who had tripled in the Orioles' first run in the seventh, opened the 12th by legging out a single to short, his fifth hit. He took second on a sacrifice and raced to third as Blair walked on a wild pitch from loser Frank Linzy (2-4).

Tommy Davis then hit a two-hopper to Garcia at second. Garcia tried to tag Blair coming up the line, but Blair, who had been running with the pitch, dodged the tag. Garcia then threw to first to retire Davis, but by then Bumbry had scored.

"I did the only thing I could do," Garcia said. "I reached out for him but he was already by me. I wasn't too far from the bag, but it wasn't hit hard enough to be a double play if I had to go over and step on the bag. If he not running with the pitch, it's a double play."

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver said he first had signaled for a squeeze play.

"Tommy (Davis) got the sign but just forgot to answer that he got it," Weaver said. "When he doesn't answer, the guy on third doesn't know if he should go or not. So I just gave Blair the sign to steal and for a change the play worked."

"Tommy was supposed to swing if the ball is a strike and if it's a ball he can take. I don't know whether they would have thrown through to second or not, but I just wanted to get us out of the double play situation," Weaver said.

Mike Cuellar, who scattered nine hits, retired the Brewers in order in their half of the 12th to earn his fourth victory in 11 decisions.

The crowd of 12,140 enabled the Brewers to become the sixth American League club to exceed the 500,000 mark in home attendance this year. They have drawn 189,125 in eight dates on the current home stand for a total of 506,652.

Last year, the club didn't go over the half million mark until Aug. 26 and the figure wasn't topped until July 9 in 1970, when a season record for the franchise of 934,820 was set.

Mets land in cellar

Osteen posts 10th win as Dodgers nip Padres

By HIL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
When Abner Doubleday and Alexander Cartwright and those other oldtimers dreamed up this game of baseball, they decided that nine innings would be just about right for their little invention.

That was one inning too many for the New York Mets and that thump you just heard was Yogi Berra's ball club landing in the National League East basement.

The Mets led Chicago 2-0 for eight innings Monday night but the Cubs rallied for three runs in the ninth to take the ball game, 3-2.

But the Cubs, who continue to lead the NL East by a comfortable margin, are taking nothing for granted.

"We've traveled this road before," Cubs' captain Ron Santo said. "It's very early yet."

But it's getting late for the Mets, who are 8½ games and five teams away from first place.

In other National League action Monday night, Pittsburgh slipped out of the cellar and moved one percentage point ahead of the Mets by sweeping a doubleheader from Montreal 8-6 and 3-1, Philadelphia overtook St. Louis 7-6, Houston whacked Cincinnati 13-2 and Los Angeles shaded San Diego 3-2.

Richie Hebner and Rennie Stennett drove in three runs apiece as Pittsburgh outslugged Montreal to win the first game of their doubleheader.

Then Hebner and Al Oliver cracked home runs to help the Pirates complete the sweep in the nightcap.

Sluggish Willie Stargell, who doubled and scored Pittsburgh's tie-breaking run in the fourth inning of the second game, said the Pirates would get straightened away yet.

"Don't worry about us," said Stargell. "We'll get along. If the guys on this club had never played together or weren't used to winning, maybe we'd be in trouble. The point is, we've been together a long time and we've been winning for a long time so there's no reason for us to keep on playing the lousy baseball we've played so far."

Rookie Mike Rogodzinski continued his hot pinch hitting, drilling a two-run shot in the eighth inning to lift Philadelphia past St. Louis. It was Rogodzinski's seventh hit this season, all of them in a pinch hitting role. As a starter, he's 0-for-18.

Claude Osteen, 10-3, earned his seventh straight victory for Los Angeles with ninth inning help from Jim Brewer. Ken McMullen slugged his third home run in as many nights for the Dodgers.

Houston exploded for nine runs in one inning and Ken Forsch coasted to his victory over Cincinnati. Cesar Cedeno touched off the big sixth inning with his 13th homer of the year. Bob Watson had a three-run double and Doug Rader also drove in three with a bases-loaded double in the eighth.

DISPUTED CALL... New York Yankee second baseman Horace Clarke let home plate umpire Lou DiMuro know in no uncertain terms that he was dissatisfied with DiMuro's call Monday night as the Yankees lost to Cleveland 4-2. Clarke was called out at the plate on a tag by Cleveland catcher Dave Duncan as he tried to score on an infield grounder. (AP Photofax)

Survives uniform inspection

Gaylord Perry halts Yankees' win streak

By HERSHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Gaylord Perry was frisked in Cleveland Monday night and brother Jim Perry got fished in Boston.

An indignant Gaylord survived another uniform inspection by the umpires and New York Manager Ralph Houk amid renewed charges that he was loading up the baseball and pitched the Indians to a 4-2 victory that snapped the Yankees' eight-game winning streak.

Bobby Murcer, who has gripped in the past that Perry greases up the ball, was at bat when Houk called for the frisk.

"I'm 99 per cent sure that he puts something on the ball," Murcer said. "It's a slippery, clear substance and you can tell when you feel the ball. The umpires know what Perry's doing, but they've been told by the president of the league to ignore it. Their hands are tied."

Jim, who pitches for Detroit, was done in by Boston catcher Carlton Fisk's tie-breaking home run in the eighth inning that gave the Red Sox a 2-1 triumph and stretched the Tigers' skid to eight games.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Baltimore Orioles edged the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 in 12 innings, the Chicago White Sox held off the Minnesota Twins 3-2, the California Angels beat the Kansas City Royals 5-2 and the Texas Rangers downed the Oakland A's 4-2.

Vada Pinson drove in three runs with a triple and single while Nolan Ryan fought off repeated bouts of wildness and pitched a five-hitter as the Angels knocked the Royals out of first place in the jumbled AL West. Kansas City, which only took over the lead Sunday, fell four percentage points behind Chicago.

Flu weakened Sonny Siebert ran his string of consecutive scoreless innings to 19 and reliever Steve Foucault halted a ninth-inning Oakland rally, helping the Rangers stop the A's. Siebert blanked the A's for six innings before he tired.

The Rangers scored three runs in the third off Ken Holtzman, two on Jeff Burroughs' double. Toby Harrah homered in the eighth.

Plainview tips Lake City 4-3

PLAINVIEW, Minn. — Plainview's American Legion baseball team chalked up its seventh win against two setbacks here Monday night in handing Lake City a 4-3 loss.

Plainview grabbed a 4-0 lead and had to fend off a Lake City rally in the sixth frame to protect the win.

The winners scored in the bottom of the first with Joe Anderson knocking in a run with a single and Don Russell accounting for another with a sacrifice fly. They added lone runs in the second and fifth.

Lake City posted three runs in the sixth with Rick Dison's triple a major factor in the scoring.

Lake City also mounted a threat in the seventh, but Joe Anderson came on in relief of brother John to put out the fire with but one out and Lake City men on first and second.

Plainview plays host to St. Charles, a 3-2 winner over Wabasha Monday, Thursday night.

It's party time

JULY 1 HAS BEEN set aside for the annual chicken barbecue of the Lewiston Sportsmen's Club.

The club's members will begin serving at noon and the food will be available through the afternoon and until about 7:30 p.m.

A variety of activities will be on tap at the sportsmen's club park, just off Highway 14 near the Arches. Open trapshooting will begin at 1 and continue until 10 p.m. (shells will be available at the range).

For non-shooters there will be games and horseshoe pitching.

Advance tickets will be available from club members prior to the gathering or you can get them at the park Sunday.

Evinrude goes rotary

POWER BOAT racing is more than a sport to the major outboard manufacturers, it's a proving ground for their latest innovations and ideas. With that in mind, the Evinrude-sponsored team is using nothing but rotary combustion engines this season—and from now on.

An Evinrude spokesman points out that over the years of racing with the conventional engine, a vast collection of knowledge has been stored that can serve the industry for years. There are but small changes and improvements to be made in the new conventional outboards, but the rotary-powered outboard engine is in its infancy and there's plenty of room for development and research.

The idea is to learn more about the potential use of this type engine in the recreation field. Someday we'll be pushing our fishing boats with rotary powered kickers that use less gas, run quieter and put out more power than the conventional outboards we know today.

In the first race the Evinrude RC's took part in they impressed the experts with their speed and smoothness, but couldn't take the strain of a nine-hour endurance race. In a second race, also an endurance run, the Evinrude RC's finished 1-2-3 in a field of conventional outboards.

Over a short period of time, the RC has made great strides and as the other major manufacturers get into the testing program—and they already have to some degree or other—we can look for a rotary combustion engine on the market in a few years and dozens available before too long.

Sportsmen to meet

THE GOPIER STATE Sportsmen's Club, La Crescent, Minn., will be holding its regular June meeting Thursday beginning at 8 p.m.

Following a brief business meeting, outdoor films will be shown.

HR's, Smith's sinker thwart Westby, 5-0

Karl Kreuzer and Greg Scarborough each blasted a home run while Mike Smith baffled opposing batters with an effective sinker ball Monday night to give the Winona Lejets a 5-0 triumph over Westby, Wis., at Gabrych Park.

Kreuzer tagged his round tripper over the leftfield screen leading off the bottom of the first inning and it proved to be all the support Smith was going to need.

The Cotter High graduate, who had such a successful season for the Ramblers this past spring in terms of his earned run average (.051), had the Westby hitters swinging off stride continually with a variety of low breaking pitches.

Smith gave up just three singles and struck out ten in balancing his summer record at 1-1.

WESTBY, now 3-3 overall, got a runner past second base only once. Smith's mound opponent, Greg Glass, drew one of four walks given up by the Lejets' righthander with two out in the top of the fourth inning and moved to third on a stolen base and a wild pitch.

But Smith managed to get Terry Pederson on a grounder to second baseman Gary Ahrens to end the inning.

Smith and Glass hooked up in a scoreless pitchers' duel after Kreuzer's solo homer until Scarborough stepped up with one out in the bottom of the sixth. The big slugger, who showed he can do plenty of damage without a bat too Saturday night in Austin, teed off on a Glass fast ball and sent it soaring over the fence in right-center for his third home run of the American Legion season.

After that the host team put it out of reach by pushing across three more runs in the inning against the tiring Westby hurler. Steve Wise slapped a single up the middle, John Mueller drew a walk, and Jim Wright was hit by a pitch to load the bases. Kelly Scofield beat out an infield hit allowing one run to score, and after Jim Lee popped out, second baseman Mike Holte bobbled Smith's grounder as Mueller and Wright raced home.

AHRENS collected one hit in three trips to the plate and now has eight hits in 13 at bats since the Legion season started.

Tonight Coach Terry Brecht's squad is scheduled to host La Crescent's American Legion contingent in a 7:30 contest at Gabrych with lefty Jim Lee slated to start on the mound. La Crescent's starter is expected to be Larry Papenfuss, a 6-2 righthander.

The Lejets, who evened their record at 2-2, will play at La Crescent Thursday night and will host Albert Lea in a twin bill starting at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Albert Lea riders claim top honors in 4-H horse show

Albert Lea, Minn. dominated showmanship and horsemanship events, while Amy and Mollie Gappa, Rochester, Minn., took home most of the ribbons in the timed events of the 4-H Invitational Horse Show held on the Morgan Block Saturday.

More than 65 horses took part in the show which was a portion of the weekends Downtown Dairy Days celebration.

The Jensen family, Albert Lea, won four of the five showmanship classes and finished second in the other. Kris Jensen won the showmanship at halter class for youngsters under 13 years old; Shawn Jensen won the same class for those over 13; Janelle won the horsemanship class for those under 13; Shawn was second in horsemanship for his age group; and Janelle won the western pleasure class.

Mollie and Amy Gappa finished 1-2 in the Reining competition, the open barrel race and polo bending while Amy won the egg and spoon.

The only Winona winner was Kelly Morken in the Pee Wee ride and lead class for those 11 years old and under.

Brigham Young's new basketball coach is Glenn Potter, a 1960 Idaho graduate.
